Jap Warships Go Northward To Face Soviet

Russia May Try to Seize Coal, Oil Properties
TENSION GROWS
New Military Activity Hinted on Manchoukuo Frontier

Tokio — (AP) — A naval ministry source disclosed today a section of the Japanese fleet was assembling in northern waters as a result of a Soviet Russian threat to confiscate Japanese oil and coal properties.

Size of the naval force, its base, and destination were not stated. The naval source declared, however, that "our ships and men are ready." Asked if Japan were likely to take armed action to prevent confiscation, he replied: "In my opinion that is possible. The situation is extremely grave."

(On Monday Soviet Russia announced rejection of a Japanese demand in "ultimatum form" regarding the rights of Japanese oil and coal concessions in Sakhalin island, which is half Russian and half Japanese. It is off the Siberian coast.)

The government awaited word as to whether Soviet authorities had carried out a threat to confiscate the property at a midnight Thursday deadline. No report has been received thus far either from Sakhalin or from Moscow.

Japs Won't Yield
Vice Admiral Masazo Sakonji, president of the North Sakhalin oil company, said "Japan will never surrender her concessions."

Official circles expressed fear of the repetition of the Nikolaevsk massacre of 1920, when some 600 Japanese were slain.

The present dispute arose from a Soviet court decision levying two fines amounting to 700,000 yen ($180,000) on Japanese companies. The Japanese appealed, charging Soviet claims were groundless.

When at Thursday midnight, zero hour was set for payment of the fine, with confiscation as an alternative.

"Large Scale Program"
Sakonji said the fine was "patently illegal."

"Obviously," he stated, "the Soviets never expected it would be paid, thus permitting them to threaten confiscation. It is part of a large scale program to force Japan to relinquish the concessions. This we will never do."

The vice admiral charged many arrests without reason had been made by Soviet authorities, in one of which a Japanese prisoner, in fact, was kept standing continuously for 11 days until "finally his legs developed a kind of dropsical condition and burst."

Japan acquired rights to operate coal mines and oil fields along a 100-mile strip of the Sakhalin eastern coast as a result of the tragedy at Nikolaevsk, which is on the Siberian mainland, across the Tatar strait from Sakhalin. (Japanese had occupied all of the island in 1920 but withdrew from the northern half on receipt of the concessions.)

HINT NEW ACTION
Hsinching, Manchoukuo — (AP) — Japanese military circles indicated today that unless a formal truce is declared soon in the Manchoukuo Outer Mongolia frontier warfare, renewed Japanese military action is to be expected.

Discussion of the prospects of early peace negotiations continued, however, in Japanese and Manchoukuo official circles. Yesterday it was indicated authoritatively that Japan would be willing to negotiate her conflict with Soviet Russia on the borders of their two protectorates if Moscow made the first gesture.

Dispatches from the front along the Khalka river, meanwhile, contained implied admissions that the Japanese-Manchoukuos had gained.

Justice Bureau Asked to Pass On WPA Issue

Questioned on Rate to be Paid on Projects Begun Before July 1

COMPROMISE PLAN
Harrington Declares 'Backbone' of Strike To be Broken

Washington — (AP) — The justice department has been asked to decide whether the prevailing hourly wage rate can be paid on WPA projects started before the new relief act became effective July 1.

A committee from the United States Conference of Mayors advanced the suggestion as a compromise in the controversy which has caused strikes on WPA projects in various parts of the country. The strikers protested a 130-hour work-month, which eliminated the prevailing wage scale.

Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, disclosed yesterday that he had asked for the ruling. At the same time, he said the "backbone" of the strike had been broken with the reopening of projects in Minneapolis.

Reports conflicted on the number of WPA employees participating yesterday in demonstrations against provisions of the new law. The Workers' Alliance, a union of WPA employees which sponsored them, said they were not a strike.

Varied Estimates
Figures on the number participating as announced by the workers' Alliance were at variance with those of WPA officials. The latter said not more than 4,000 took part in New York but the Alliance declared today the total was 66,000. It said the second largest number was 38,000 in Pennsylvania.

The Alliance reported 390,000 persons participated in demonstrations in 15 states and figures on other states were still to come in. An Alliance statement said "estimates of participation based on absence from work are entirely misleading."

"Such temporary interruptions of work as occurred were incidental to the workers getting to the place where the demonstrations were to take place," it said. "Many thousands took part in demonstrations in their off periods."

Judge Considering State's Claim for More Horlick Money
Racine — (AP) — Probate Judge J. Allan Simpson last night took under advisement the case in which the state of Wisconsin seeks to obtain additional inheritance taxes from the estate of the late William Horlick Sr.

Decision was expected about Aug. 1. State and federal taxes on the $17,000,000 estate already have amounted to more than $9,000,000, but the state inheritance tax division brought action to obtain further taxes on gifts of $7,000,000 made by Horlick to his three children four years prior to his death in 1936.

Neal Conway, inheritance tax division counsel, declared the manufacturer made the gifts in 1932 in "anticipation of death and with a view to escaping inheritance taxes."

Bert Vandervelde, estate counsel, argued that the gifts to the three children were made in compensation for work of the children in the firm. Testimony was presented that efforts had been made to sell the Horlick malted milk plant so that the money could be divided between William Horlick, Jr., Alexander J. Horlick, and the late Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley.

Gets 6-Month Term for Theft of Rubber Stamp
Milwaukee — (AP) — Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy yesterday sentenced John McLennan, 26, of Chicago, to serve six months in the house of correction for theft of a rubber stamp used for money orders at the Lake Geneva, Wis., post office.

Installment Plan Of Tax Collection Has Assembly's O. K.
Madison — (AP) — The assembly today adopted overwhelmingly a resolution amending the constitution to empower local communities to collect real estate taxes in installments. The vote was 69 to 4.

Such measures must be approved by two successive legislatures and a public referendum before becoming law.

Introduced by Daugs (D), Ft. Atkinson, Kostuck (R), Stevens Point, and Niemuth (R), Oshkosh, the resolution now goes to the senate.

The house passed bills levying a fine of $1 to $50 and two to 60 days imprisonment for disorderly conduct on the state fair grounds, and exempting cheese less than 60 days old, which is owned by the manufacturer, from property taxes. They were sent to the senate.

It also passed and sent to the senate a bill licensing and regulating rendering plants under the state board of health. Cities of the first, second and third class would be allowed to set up their own regulations if they are not less stringent than the state's.

Senate Banking Committee Cuts 400 Million From Lending Plan; Adds Funds for Western Projects

ADDED FUNDS
St. Louis — (AP) — Increased allotments to enable the expansion of the national youth administration program for the fiscal year which began July 1 were announced by Aubrey Williams (above), federal administrator, at a conference here with directors from 16 states. The larger appropriations will average about 20 per cent above the 1938-39 figures. Williams told the state administrators. The money is from the $66,000,000 fund set aside for the NYA's non-school projects for the coming year.

Washington — (AP) — The senate banking committee trimmed $400,000,000 from President Roosevelt's $2,800,000,000 lending program today and then added $90,000,000 for reclamation projects in the west.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), voicing the views of minority committee members, told reporters Republicans still were "not satisfied" and would seek further curtailment of the measure.

The committee agreed to cut from $750,000,000 to $500,000,000 a proposed authorization for toll roads and from $500,000,000 to $350,000,000 the total which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation could expend for railroad equipment to be leased to the carriers.

Jones' Statement
While the senate committee was busy with details of the legislation, Jesse Jones, new federal loan administrator, told the house banking committee that any inference drawn from previous testimony by him, and current in some congressional circles, that the lending legislation was unnecessary was "of course, ridiculous."

Jones was reported authoritatively to have told the senate committee last yesterday that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation could finance the program for two years with its present borrowing authority but that some amendments to existing law would be necessary to carry out such lending proposals as construction of toll roads and leasing of equipment to railroads.

Today he told the house committee that the $1,381,000,000 still available to the RFC for loans of all types "can't and won't" take care of the proposed new program. He said the RFC did not have adequate authority to make the types of loans contemplated.

Would Call Strike Arbitrator to Appear As Bridges' Witness
San Francisco — (AP) — The Harry Bridges defense today requested a subpoena for Wayne L. Morse, dean of the University of Oregon Law school and arbitrator of the Pacific coast longshore contract, to testify as a character witness for the Australian-born labor leader in his deportation hearing.

The application, signed by Carol King, chief of defense counsel, said Morse's testimony would "show that Harry Bridges is a man whose integrity and character are such that he is to be believed when testifying under oath."

Bridges has denied repeatedly he is or ever has been a member of the Communist party.

The day's first witness Eugene Dietrich, international organizer for the A. F. of L. International Longshoremen's association, quoted Bridges' wife as once telling him "I've got his (Bridges') Communist book."

Three Convicts Facing Trial for Kidnaping
Michigan City, Ind. — (AP) — Three convicts who seized a woman worker in the Indiana prison here June 27 and sought to bargain her life for their freedom, pleaded innocent today to kidnaping charges, conviction of which carries a mandatory death sentence.

The three—Richard Sweet, Alphonse Skusewicz and Earl Niver—were brought to court in shackles and returned to solitary confinement after the arraignment.

State police and prison guards blasted the convicts' plot with a fusillade of gunfire into the prison physician's office, where they held Mrs. Ruth Joiner captive. The prisoners and Mrs. Joiner were wounded.

Native of Neenah Is Named to Commission
Washington — (AP) — William J. Patterson of North Dakota who was nominated yesterday by President Roosevelt to become a member of the interstate commerce commission had long experience as a railroad man in Wisconsin.

He was born at Neenah, Wis., in 1880 and started out as a call boy for the Wisconsin Central railway at Stevens Point. He worked up through successive jobs on various roads and was a conductor for the Northern Pacific road when appointed to the interstate commerce commission rail regulating agency staff in 1914.

Inventor of 'Biograph' Succumbs in New York
Canastota, N. Y. — (AP) — Herman Casler, 70, the inventor of the "biograph," forerunner of the modern motion picture projector, died last night after a short illness.

Casler achieved national fame when his invention received its first public showing at the old Hammerstein vaudeville house in New York city Oct. 11, 1896. Formation of the American Mutoscope and Biograph company followed the exhibition.

Bill to Revamp Public Service Body Gets O.K.

Senate Passes Measure 20 To 12 and Sends It To Assembly

ROAD PLAN SHELVED
House Tables Highway Commission Reorganization Program

Madison — (AP) — Voting 20 to 12 strictly along party lines, the senate late yesterday cleared the administration's bill to reorganize the state public service commission. The bill now goes to the assembly.

Senator Bernhard Gettelman (R) Milwaukee, voted with the Progressive minority. Senator Francis Yindra (D) Manitowish, an earlier foe of the bill, was not present.

The bill proposes that the present three-man board be replaced by a director appointed by the governor with senate approval, serving a six-year term at $10,000 annually. Three divisions headed at $5,000 per year each, would be named by the director. They would not be subject to civil service, but others of the staff would be certified by the bureau of personnel.

Appeals from directors' rulings would be taken to the proposed board of administrative review, which would be created by a companion bill now pending in the assembly after senate passage.

Amendments Beaten
The public service bill was sponsored by Senators Morvin E. Duell of Fond du Lac and Kenneth S. White of River Falls, both Republicans. More than a dozen amendments were offered for the measure over a series of debates in hearing and on the floor, but the senate passed it in almost the same form as the original.

Duell chided opposition of Progressives, declaring that former Governor La Follette favored a similar bill. Duell quoted La Follette's opening message to the 1937 special session.

Former Banker Is Facing Charges

Chippewa Falls Man to Surrender This Afternoon at Madison

Madison — (AP) — United States District Attorney John J. Boyle announced today he had been informed that William T. Sullivan, former president of the Lumberman's National bank of Chippewa Falls, would surrender here this afternoon to face charges of misapplying bank funds.

Boyle made the announcement after he had conferred with Sullivan's attorney, Clarence E. Rinehart, Chippewa Falls. The banker, Boyle said, came to Madison with his attorney this morning, but his surrender was delayed temporarily to allow time for issuance of a new warrant and arrangements for bond.

The federal prosecutor said he was informed last April 6 that Sullivan was missing and that irregularities had been discovered in bank accounts. The exact amount of the alleged embezzlement has not been determined, Boyle added.

A fugitive warrant had been issued for Sullivan by a federal court commissioner.

Rinehart said he and Sullivan left Minneapolis last night by automobile and stopped enroute between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. at Black River Falls. He did not disclose where Sullivan had been since he disappeared.

The defense attorney said the banker would make a statement when he surrendered at the district attorney's office.

Heil Backs Bolens Resolution On 15-Cent Oleo Tax, Friendly Trade Relations With South

Madison — (AP) — Governor Heil, in a message to the assembly, today endorsed the resolution of Senator Harry Bolens (D) of Port Washington, upholding Wisconsin's oleomargarine tax of 15 cents a pound and proposing friendly trade relations with southern states.

Bolens' resolution, introduced in the legislature yesterday, said the "oleomargarine trust" and other interests were attempting to arouse resentment against Wisconsin products. It declared Wisconsin now purchases large quantities of southern goods including cotton products and urged that the state continue to do so in the face of a threatened southern boycott.

"I have read joint resolution No. 688 and I heartily agree with the sentiments expressed therein," the governor said. "It is our duty to promote the sale of our dairy products. Wisconsin is one of the leading dairy states in the Union and any legislative act which can promote and protect our dairy interests should be enacted."

The action of 11 southern governors in sending a representative to the Wisconsin legislature, R. J. Goode, of Gastonville, Ala., showed their interest in their cotton market. The governor and members of the

Neutrality No Longer Issue, Roosevelt Says

Measure to Curb Politics Is Given House's Approval
Hatch Bill Sent Back to Senate for Action on Amendments

BULLETIN
Washington — (AP) — The senate approved today minor house changes in the Hatch bill prohibiting political activities by government employees and sent the measure to the White House.

Washington — (AP) — The Hatch bill to curb political activities of federal officials won house approval last night after a long, boisterous session in which a Republican-Democratic coalition defeated stubborn attempts to modify its language.

The measure, passed by a vote of 242 to 133, goes back to the senate for acceptance of minor amendments. Senator Hatch (D-Mo.) its author, predicted this would be forthcoming quickly.

As weary legislators left the capitol, Hatch told reporters: "The purpose of the bill is to prevent office-holders going to political conventions and states. It is not intended to limit the right of a person to express his political opinion, but only to prevent the average office-holder not already covered by the civil service from going out and managing or engaging in my campaign or anybody else's."

Lineup in Vote
The final vote found all the Republicans present—157—joining 83 Democrats and 2 Progressives in support of the measure. Voting against it were 132 Democrats and the sole American-Laborite.

The house nullified a revision proposed by its judiciary committee after President Roosevelt had called the original senate bill poorly drawn.

In rejecting the committee's recommendation, the house accepted by a lopsided vote a proposal by Representative Dempsey (D-N.J.), declaring that most persons in the executive branch of the government must not use their official positions to influence an election and must not participate in "political management or political campaigns."

But the chamber agreed to these exemptions: Members of congress, the president and vice president, heads and assistant heads of executive departments, any federal appointees who determine national policies and policies relating to foreign relations.

Controversy Closed
The chief executive indicated that the neutrality controversy was closed until congress reassembles next January, so far as he was concerned. The bill was to be discussed at length with newsmen clustered around his desk in the study of his home here.

He was told that senate isolationists were predicting he would carry the neutrality issue to the country on a prospective trip to the west coast.

Mr. Roosevelt wanted to know what neutrality issue existed. A reporter remarked that the arms embargo was the issue and the president then asked whether it was not closed till next January by action of the senate.

There is and can be no immediate issue before the country, he amplified, because certain groups in the senate precluded any action until January.

He said it should be made perfectly clear, of course, that those groups had accepted the responsibility for withholding action on neutrality.

No Clashes at Confab
About all we can do between now and January is pray there won't be another crisis and pray awfully hard, Mr. Roosevelt declared.

Since senators who attended the Tuesday night conference talked about it somewhat freely, the president was asked whether he cared to say anything from his angle.

He denied there were any clashes at the meeting, which was attended by both Democratic and Republican leaders of the senate. Reports of clashes, he said, were made entirely out of whole cloth. There was only one disagreement between any of the individuals present, he said. Senator Borah (R-Idaho), he went on, did intimate rather clearly and definitely that his private information from Europe was better

Color Pictures of Mars Hint Planet Bears Plant Life

Bloomfontein, Union of South Africa — (AP) — The first successful color pictures of Mars, taken with special equipment by Earl C. Slipher, American astronomer, indicate that plant life exists on the planet.

Slipher, brother of Dr. Vesto Melvin Slipher, director of the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., is here studying the planet which next Thursday will be the closest to earth it has been in 15 years—35,000,000 miles away.

The scientist's photographs, taken Wednesday night, disclosed that a huge dark spot or great eye of Mars seems to have assumed a shape not observed for 50 years if ever before.

Slipher suggested the change was caused by fresh vegetation over an area roughly the size of the United States. The "great eye" is near Mars' southern ice cap, which is breaking up now with the arrival of Martian spring.

Smith of Virginia May be Head of Labor Board Quiz

Wagner Act Critic Introduced Resolution Asking Investigation

Washington—(P)—With a critic of the Wagner act as its probable chairman, a special committee of five house members will begin a far-reaching investigation into activities of the National Labor Relations Board shortly after congress adjourns.

The investigation was ordered yesterday by a house vote of 254 to 134. An almost solid Republican delegation joined a sizeable Democratic bloc in overruling pleas of labor committee members to await consideration of Wagner act amendments.

If house present is followed, the investigating group will be headed by Representative Smith (D-Va.), who sponsored the resolution and who voted against the Wagner act. Speaker Bankhead will appoint the committee members.

Full Subpoena Powers

The committee will have full subpoena powers. The house directed to find out whether the labor board has been fair in its interpretation of the Wagner act and to check on the general effects of the law on employer-employee relations.

The committee also will have the right to suggest amendments to the Wagner act and recommend changes in the personnel of the labor board.

The tall, spare Smith, former Virginia circuit court judge, told the "something is wrong that needs looking into."

Chairman Norton (D-N.J.) of the labor committee denounced the proposal as one to "usurp" the powers of her committee and declared if her committee finds it is just and necessary to amend the Wagner act "it will do just that."

There were other developments on the labor scene when the house was putting through the resolution.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate labor committee proposed that a single "umpire or czar" be empowered to settle the dispute between the CIO and the A. F. of L.

The LaFollette civil liberties committee recommended to Thomas' committee enactment of a bill to outlaw labor spies and use of tear gas and munitions in labor disputes.

Ex-Convict Dies In Gang Fashion

Philadelphia Has Third Shotgun Slaying in Less Than Two Months

Philadelphia—(P)—In Philadelphia's third gangland slaying in less than two months, Frank Piccolo, 35-year-old, recently paroled convict, was shot today as he sat in a meat truck waiting for a traffic light to change.

A blast from an automatic pumpgun cut him down before he was aware of two men who pulled alongside in a black automobile. One poked the gun in Piccolo's face and fired. Then the car sped on.

Piccolo once before was the target of a bullet before he was sentenced to eastern penitentiary nine years ago on a second degree murder conviction. He was released June 14.

That shooting, in which two men pumped bullets from a speeding automobile, was said by police to have resulted from a war between narcotics peddlers. Piccolo once was sentenced to 10 years for selling illegal narcotics.

Today's burst of gunfire followed less than a month after the killing of "Willie" Lanzetti, known to police as an underworld character. His bullet-punctured body was found July 1, sewn in a burlap sack and tossed behind a wall.

Another underworld figure, Danny Day, was killed May 29 as he sped down a street in a flashy roadster with a blonde woman companion. He, too, was cut down by a blast fired from a car which pulled alongside.

Sauer Granted Permit To Remodel Residence

Harvey Sauer, 1013 E. Walden avenue, has been granted a permit by the city building inspector to remodel his home at an estimated cost of $1,000.

Another permit for remodeling of a residence has been issued Henry Boyle, 1820 S. Jefferson street. The work will cost $500. Mrs. Mae Frick, 407 N. Oneida street, has been granted a permit for construction of a concrete garage, 12 by 22 feet in size, at a cost of $275.

Wiley Named Delegate To Norwegian Congress

Washington—(P)—An appointment as a delegate to the Interparliamentary Union Conference at Oslo, Norway, Aug. 15 to 19 has been accepted by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.).

Wiley, who speaks the Norwegian language, was named by Representative Fish (R-N.Y.), president of the 76th Congress Interparliamentary Union.

At Oslo, world peace neutrality and refugee problems will be considered. Also to be discussed will be questions of armament limitation, economic and similar matters.

Boys Will Get Their Chicken Dinner but Not as They Planned

Camden, N. J.—(P)—Eight boys from Camden's river front shantytown wanted chicken, and they're going to get it—as "guests" of the city.

Arrested on charges of stealing chickens from a refrigerator car, the boys told police they planned a dinner "with all the trimmings."

They'll have to stay in jail until a hearing Monday—and the Sunday jail dinner is chicken.

Traffic in State Is Heavy During 1st Part of July

Automatic Recorders Show Increase in Travel Over Fourth

Traffic over Wisconsin's highways was slightly greater in the first part of July this year, compared with the early part of July last year, the state highway commission concludes.

Reports from automatic traffic recorders of the highway department show that Fourth of July travel across Wisconsin was as heavy this year as last, while some sections of the state saw distinct increases in amount of travel. Much of the travel was into Wisconsin, but there also was a heavy travel into other states from Wisconsin during the early part of July.

On Superhighway 41 from Milwaukee south toward Racine and Kenosha counties, a four-day period in July found 22,662 cars moving south. On the northern lane of the same highway, 21,130 vehicles were traveling north into Wisconsin during the same four days. On the corresponding days of 1938, the southbound lane carried 20,871 vehicles, while the northbound lane checked 23,980 vehicles.

Heaviest travel north was on Saturday, July 1, when 8,203 vehicles passed the counter, while the largest count on the southbound lane, 7,840 vehicles, was made on July 4.

On United States Highway 41 between Fond du Lac and Milwaukee, 39,418 vehicles were clocked in the southbound 4-day period of July, compared with 37,964 vehicles on the same days of 1938. These figures of course included cars traveling in both directions. Heaviest day's travel was Sunday, July 2, when 11,479 vehicles passed the counters.

2,000 Cars Per Day

Near Medford, Highway 13, vehicles averaged nearly 2,000 per day during the early part of July, and the total for the period tabulated was several hundred more than for the same time last year.

Travel into northern Wisconsin for Fourth of July vacations was about the same as last year. Over United States Highway 51 at Merrill, the automatic recorder showed the passing of 24,163 vehicles from July 1 to 5 inclusive this year, and 24,832 last year. On United States Highway 45 between Antigo and Rhinelander, the check revealed 21,590 vehicles this year and 20,151 for the first five days of July last year, an increase of 1,439. On United States Highway 53 at Cameron, 16,027 vehicles passed an automatic recorder in five days of July this year, compared with 15,040 on the same days in 1938. All of these recorders showed the heaviest movement of cars in northern Wisconsin this year took place on Saturday, July 1.

Between Madison and Baraboo on United States Highway 12, the Sauk City automatic recorder registered 29,811 vehicles in the first five days of July this year, compared with 29,452 on the same days last year. And not all the travel was on state and federal highways, for the automatic counter on County Trunk P and S in Dane county recorded 1,736 passing cars from July 1 to 5 this year, compared with 1,558 last year.

Similar heavy counts were recorded in the first part of July in other sections of the state, but other comparisons cannot be made because those automatic recorders have not been in the same locations for two or more years.

One Man's Guess About War As Good as Another's; Chief Issue Would be Domination

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—Washington's summer-heat debate over neutrality legislation has served as the shower to sprout a new crop of speculations at home and abroad about the prospects of conflict in Europe.

Poland's distinguished General Wladislaw Sikorski says Germany can be expected to make a new effort about Aug. 15 to create a "local war" with Poland. The French press also has been inclined to look for a fresh crisis sometime in August or September.

On the other hand the German press has been shrugging its shoulders and asking what all the fuss is about.

Over in London, Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, referring to its prediction last year that there would be no war, declares in a voice reaching far:

"There was no war last year and there will be no European war involving Britain this year either."

British Premier Chamberlain asserts "there is every indication that Britain's newly-regained power is restoring confidence to Europe and in those countries which desire to live in peace and security." Not all English circles are so optimistic.

Anybody who wants to can get his 10 cents worth of satisfaction in becoming a prophet. And the cold fact is that his guess will be just as good as that of the next man.

Nobody knows whether we shall have war soon. There is no factual basis on which to pin a definite prediction.

Until a comparatively recent date one could see with fair certainty what the near future held in the way of war possibilities. At the time of the Munich crisis, for example, your correspondent, who was reporting on the ground, was bold enough to assert more than once that war wasn't likely. He did the same for other situations.

In all those cases, however, the observer's task was one of making two and two equal four. Now the European tangle has entered an entirely different phase. The fairly exact conditions which existed before have given way to broader and more elusive grounds, and we get this picture:

Wide Issue

A general war, if it should come, will be to settle the wide issue of who's who in Europe. That is, it will be to determine which group of great powers shall dominate, politically and economically.

It won't be a fight over "isms," and it won't be a battle over the sovereignty of some little country, though those things may play a secondary role.

That brings us up to the fair certainty that there won't be war over Danzig or any similar situation unless either the Berlin-Rome axis group, or the Anglo-French allies decide that the time has arrived when the great issue of domination must be settled.

That's why nobody can say whether Danzig will provide the spark for an upheaval—because Danzig's status wouldn't be the real issue.

Many observers believe that the big pay-off isn't in sight. There are several reasons for this view. Among them are:

(1) That the people of every country of Europe want to avoid war. (2) That neither France nor England has yet reached the peak of preparedness, despite their great progress in that direction. (3) That the axis power are hard-pressed economically, and are held by most foreign experts to lack the sinews for a protracted war. The assumption is that they would prefer more time in which to improve their position.

May be Able to Pay 1 1/2 To 3 Cents on Dollar, Trustee Says

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Creditors in Green Bay, Appleton, Neenah, Shawano and other localities in northeastern Wisconsin may get 1 1/2 to 3 cents on the dollar out of the assets of the B. E. Buckman and company, defunct Madison investment house whose principal officers are serving prison terms, according to S. B. Schein, trustee in bankruptcy.

Schein said that such an estimate of the yield to general creditors was "optimistic," and that the actual return may be much less because of the character of the assets.

Schein's estimate was made at a hearing before Referee Miles C. Riley in response to inquiries from attorneys for claimants outside of Madison who wanted to know how much their clients might hope to realize.

It was reported that the claim from the owner of the building which housed the Buckman's company's Fox River Valley branch in Green Bay, for unexpired lease rental, has already been disallowed.

Hearings have been held before the referee on all preferred claims and reclamation petitions of Buckman customers seeking to recover specific securities. More than 400 contested matters have been disposed of without an appeal. Hearings continued this week on general and unsecured claims.

Schein said that claims total about $800,000 and that even if $300,000 of these are ultimately disallowed, upwards of $500,000 would remain to share in the existing assets.

The trustee has $12,000 on hand and "may get" $20,000 more, said Schein. The $20,000 contingent asset represents the Buckman company's claim against oil contracts totaling 186,000 barrels, which the Continental Service company, a Buckman affiliate, is contesting on the ground that the Buckman company bought the oil as its agent.

Over 18,000 WPA Workers in State To be Dismissed

Those Employed for 18 Consecutive Months To be Dropped

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The new rotation of employment rule in the 1939-40 WPA program will mean dismissal from their jobs of 18,000 to 21,000 WPA employees in Wisconsin on Aug. 31, according to the best available authorities today.

P. D. Flanner, state administrator, reported that he has not yet made a complete tabulation of the number on Wisconsin WPA rolls who have been working for 18 months or longer, but that it would be at least 18,000.

Under the new program, such employees will be dropped. After a period of one month they will be eligible for reclassification.

Flanner explained, however, that he has received orders from Washington to reduce his July quota of 58,000 persons by 6,000 before the beginning of August.

"Spread" Dismissals

In order to "spread" the dismissals of the 18-month employees, he said that he is complying with the August quota assignment by dropping those which have already had 18 months of consecutive employment.

Were it not for that plan, he explained, the total to lose their jobs at the end of August may be as high as 21,000.

State WPA authorities estimate that Wisconsin's share of the new WPA appropriation of $1,477,000 will be enough to maintain an average Wisconsin WPA employment total of 50,000 during the new year. During the year just ended, the average number on the rolls was about 70,000.

The state administrator announced today that he will issue a formal statement early next week explaining the various new and complicated features of the new work program, and its effect on Wisconsin municipalities which are sponsoring projects.

Jap Warships are Sent to Northern Zone After Threat

ed no better than a draw in the 10-weeks-old conflict.

Desultory artillery combats continued but apparently without infantry action. (Japanese dispatches to Tokio, however, said that 20 Russian or Mongolian planes had been shot down in a renewal of aerial warfare.)

Here it is held that there has been no victor in the fighting which has continued intermittently since May 11. The Japanese admit that a Soviet or Mongol detachment still holds a bridgehead on the east bank of the Khalka river but assert this advantage was gained only at heavy cost.

(Manchoukuo's Japanese protectors say the Khalka is the boundary in the battle area; Outer Mongolia's Russian protectors say the line runs some miles east of the river.)

The Soviet-Mongols have thrown a pontoon bridge across the river. The Japanese were said to be reluctant to try to dislodge them because of strong Soviet artillery support in the rear.

Justifying their claims of a draw the Japanese say they have counted 1,700 enemy dead on the battlefield, of which 1,500 were Russians. (Last week Moscow reported the Japanese and Manchoukuoans lost 2,000 killed in the Khalka battle.)

Although the battle has died down there has been no real cessation since July 2.

Dan Cupid Due for Workout If Bachelor Tax Is Passed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Assemblyman Melvin Schlytter of Shawano county, a Republican, today remained steadfast in his claim that a bachelor tax is a fair and sound means of raising funds for old-age assistance, despite the fact that his "fan" mail has run heavily to scorn and criticism since he announced his idea last week.

Schlytter wants to tax bachelors between the ages of 30 and 50 years, to raise a total of $1,500,000 a year.

The Wittenberg lawmaker, who has been banttered considerably by his colleagues this week, admitted today that one of the critical correspondents who took up his pen when he heard of the bachelor tax idea wanted to know why "old maids" are exempt.

The Shawano assemblyman, however, figures that spinsters are in a different category, should not be penalized for a condition over which they probably had no control. Spinsterhood, unlike bachelorhood, says Schlytter, is not a matter of choice.

The author says that the idea is his own, and points out forcefully that it will fall upon some members of the legislature, including Maurice Fitzsimmons of Fond du Lac, a Democrat famed for his antagonism toward women on public payrolls.

Note: Schlytter is married, and has two children.

Name Turns Up Four Times in Drawings

Yadkinville, N. C.—(P)—The first time a movie house offered a "jackpot," W. Banks Horton, a lawyer, won it.

The second week, the winning name was "W. Banks Horton." But he wasn't present, so the prize was carried over for another week.

A winning name was picked the third week "W. Banks Horton." Disgruntled yells went up.

So a fourth drawing was held in the theater lobby.

Yep, the winnah—"W. Banks Horton."

Highway Opened To Public Travel

About Eight Miles of Improved Road Added To Highway 110

Fremont—Highway 110 near Fremont, to Winchester, is again open to traffic, making available approximately eight miles of improved road. Seven miles of the highway has been widened and resurfaced with black top and sharp curves have been improved by widening and banking.

The major improvement on the road is near Fremont where about one mile of new concrete was poured on a relocation of the highway which avoids the sharp turns. This work was started a year ago but was not completed in 1938 because of weather conditions.

State Independent Unions to Meet at Kimberly July 29

Attainments Secured Through Collective Bargaining Chief Topic

A state meeting of the Wisconsin Association of Independent Unions will be held at the Kimberly Village hall, at 8 o'clock Friday evening, July 28, it was announced today by Donald F. Cameron, president of the association on behalf of the executive committee.

Among speakers to address the convention is Assemblyman Robert Tehan, Democrat, Milwaukee attorney, whom Cameron lauded for his stand on the needs of independent unions and what they can do to sponsor and promote legislation beneficial to their members.

Chief topic at the convention will be the attainments secured by independent unions through collective bargaining, with the subject divided into two parts. L. C. Jones of the independent union of Northwestern Mutual's employees will discuss contracts covering office and technical employees.

O. H. Herbst of the Industrial Power Union will talk on contracts dealing with the skilled trades, and Gerald Foster of the United Association of Office, Sales and Technical Employees, Local No. 2, will report on legislative plans in the fields of workmen's compensation and unemployment compensation and taxes.

The association was formed June 2, 1939. It is composed of delegates of bona fide independents throughout the state.

Policy of the association is to work and assist member unions in exchanging information relative to contract negotiations, wage scales, sick benefits, vacations, legislation and other items of mutual interest. Cameron said the association does not organize, but rather brings already formed unions or those that may be organized into the association.

In addition to Cameron, other officers are Walter Cappel, vice president, and W. C. Schwelitz, secretary-treasurer.

Finds Uniform Firefly Pattern

Illinois Professor Studies Peculiarities of Insect

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—The firefly is a sky-writer, who always writes the same letter, a shallow, lopsided U, when he flashes.

This uniform pattern was discovered by Prof. Charles T. Knapp, of the University of Illinois. He studied the flies in a 10-acre field in Ohio.

Just before a fly flashes he slows his flight. As the flash begins he drops toward the ground. Then his speed increases and he finishes the flash on a rise, and the rise takes him higher than when he lighted up. As he finishes the flash he slows again, wobbles a bit, but does not drop.

The reason for the peculiar motion, Professor Knapp suggests, is the extra energy used to flash. The fly's power drops momentarily when he turns on the light, then flows more strongly during the glow.

The flash is made by oxygen combining with two chemicals in the cells of the luminous part of the body. The two are luciferin and luciferase. The first carries the oxygen to the second and then the flash occurs. After that the two chemicals separate, ready to be used for another flash.

The fly has to work to make this combination. Just how it is not understood, but it is something like taking a long breath.

Legislators Hear Another Debate On Wolf Reservoir

Appleton Aldermen Approve Project, Mark Catlin Condemns It

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison — The projected Wolf River reservoir system was raised as a boon for Fox River Valley industrial development and assailed as a futile and impractical scheme to desecrate one of the few remaining virgin natural resources of Wisconsin at a likely and extended hearing before a legislative committee yesterday.

The hearing was on a bill which would authorize the Wolf River Reservoir company to construct a reservoir, or a series of reservoirs, on the upper Wolf which would store water in spring for release to Lake Winnebago and the Fox river in the dry seasons of summer. The project would be underwritten, according to plans, by Fox river valley capitalists who hope to be able to strengthen their water power under the plan. The measure has already passed the senate, and is now being considered by the assembly. The arguments were presented before the lower house committee on state affairs.

Bitter opponents were Mark Catlin, Sr., of Appleton, member of the state conservation commission, and F. G. Wilson, division chief in the state conservation department. Supporters, a long line of them, included municipal officials of Valley cities, particularly Appleton, industrial representatives, spokesmen for the Association of Relief of High Water in the low Wolf river area, and Langlade county officials.

Catlin said he "looks with suspicion" on the Wolf River company's proposal. "They talk about benefits to the people, but somebody has something to sell here. The man in question here (Catlin apparently referred to Harry Brooks of the company) plainly admits that he's got some worthless land to sell and wants to get $75,000 for it."

Brooks had told the committee that he holds 5,000 acres of land in Langlade county near Lily, which is proposed to be the site for the reservoir, and which he says he will sell to the corporation for $15 an acre.

"The only ones to be benefitted," Catlin charged, "will be the little group administering it, those who collect the dues, and the water power people."

The company plans to finance operations of the reservoir on a toll basis, assessing, with the approval of the public service commission, those water power users on the Fox and Wolf rivers which will benefit by its operations.

"When it comes to ruining the last natural resources we have for the benefit of a few mill owners, we should stop, look and listen," Catlin charged.

"What is a few dollars for the mill owners and stockholders to the rights of people yet unborn," he demanded. Catlin pointed out that the proposed reservoir will hold 4 billion cubic feet of water. He said it was "infinitesimal" and that more than that is now going to waste in the Fox river. The last year, he said, the Fox River gates at Appleton have been open, and at least that amount has been allowed to flow without use.

"This silly little pool 150 miles away from the nearest paper mill is foolish and preposterous."

Referring to arguments of representatives of New London and Langlade points out that control of the Wolf river would eliminate serious floods in that area, he said that the floods there are caused by the Embarras, and not by the Wolf.

"They're so used to floods at New London that they're web-footed, but they know that the Wolf isn't to blame," he said.

Arguments of Brooks that construction on the reservoir of the project would furnish large numbers of jobs, he said it was "mealy-mouthed talk of giving people employment. If you put this reservoir on the Wolf its beauty is forever gone. Are you going to do this for a couple of mill owners," he asked the legislators.

Wilson reiterated the construction commission's opposition to the Lily Point site for the reservoir, arguing that the Leeman site below the Shawano reservation is more practical from a power standpoint, and far less detrimental to Wolf River fish. He also asked the legislators to reconsider the state planning board's suggestion for diversion of Wisconsin river water to the Fox at Portage for the benefit of the Winnebago pool.

Among those who appeared for the bill were Brooks, Philip Vogt, George Brautigam, and W. H. Vanderheyden, members of the Appleton city council, who appeared to speak for the city government. Assemblyman Valentine Rath of Langlade county, Senator Mike Mack of Shawano and Outagamie counties, Senator Fred Fugate of Waupaca county, former Assemblyman James Cavanaugh of Langlade county, Allen H. Tripp of Fremont, secretary of the Association for the Relief of High Water, Merrill J.

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR RAPS DRINKING

In his first radio address, Gov. Luren D. Dickinson of Michigan eased his criticism of Eastern hosts at the recent governor's conference but gave another warning on 1939 social perils to mothers. He also suggested that women saw drinking without becoming intoxicated may have learned "the formula advised by a prominent lady of our nation," whom he identified by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Clark of the Wolf River Conservation Club, W. F. Thiele of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company which operates the Interlake mill at Appleton, E. J. Plantz, Antigo lawyer, Ellen G. Jackson of Oshkosh, E. W. Passell of Fremont, and others.

Brooks said that the reservoir would affect the level of Lake Winnebago eight inches each year, that it would eliminate the flooding of 70,000 acres of land between Oshkosh and New London each spring, eliminate the deposits of silt in Lake Winnebago from the Wolf, so that the necessity for dredging at a heavy cost will be avoided, help municipal sewage systems in the valley cities function properly, and aid the cause of conservation of natural resources.

"We will protect the beauties of the river by improving the stream," he said. "I love that river. For God's sake let's improve it. I've been there 50 years. Let's improve the water falls."

Plantz maintained that Catlin was "absolutely misinformed." He said the reservoir would ruin no timber, because it will be built on top of waste land. He said the artificial lake to be created would be ideal for large fish, including pike and muskellunge, and that it would not damage trout because there are no trout in the upper reaches of the Wolf.

"The flowage will be the perfect place for the breeding of large fish," he maintained. "Why wait when we have private capital in the Fox River valley ready and willing to do the job for the benefit of generations to come. It won't cost the public a dime."

Plantz said that local conservation clubs in the Wolf river area support the bill. (However, the Wisconsin Conservation Congress, at its meeting last week, formally criticized and opposed it in a resolution.)

Thiele, a former resident of Appleton, said that the Fox River at Appleton during the summer season is at such a low level that "you have to put a clothes pin on your nose to cross it."

Tripp disputed Catlin's claim that no fish are now being killed by the uncontrolled flow of the Wolf river.

He said that in a slough above Gill's landing, which he characterized as one of the best bass waters in the state, "fish by the ten of thousands die each year, enough to feed Milwaukee for two days."

Vanderheyden said that "it is a common thing to see dead fish along the Fox River in the heat of summer." The aim of the reservoir plan, he said, is to store water which is now being wasted in spring, in order to use it during those hot dry spells. He also thought it would be a health measure to freshen the Fox river in summer.

Appleton's water supply at certain periods during the summer, he said, "has some color and a muddy taste. If that can be eliminated, the people of Appleton will be very grateful."

Vanderheyden added that "we want to keep our industries in the Fox river valley. If we can provide a more constant flow they'll be able to employ more persons, and what helps the cities helps the country around us."

Assemblyman Palmer Daugs (D), Fort Atkinson, said that another public hearing on the question may be held. He said that no action would be taken by the committee immediately.

Discuss Two-Way Radio System for 4-County Hook-Up

Plan Further Study of Unit for Police Broadcasting Station

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—Two-way police radio and its place in modern crime apprehension was the main topic of discussion at a meeting held in the Winnebago county courthouse here yesterday afternoon by representatives of the four counties that make up the sponsorship of police radio station WAKE.

Representatives from Outagamie, Fond du Lac, Waupaca and Winnebago counties in their regular business meeting discussed the possibility of changing the present 1-way system into a 2-way unit as the next step in perfecting one of the most efficient means of crime prevention and apprehension. The police radio committee of Outagamie county attended the meeting.

Frank Cartwright, chief radio operator of WAKE, reported the progress made by the radio department in the last year. Since this was the first meeting that the joint committee had since the completion of the new transmitting unit at the Winnebago county farm, Cartwright explained the operation of remote control and its advantages over the old system.

J. P. Prebensen, Winnebago county chairman of the joint committee, asked for complaints or suggestions from the members of the other counties. There were no complaints and the general opinion was operating efficiently, according to statements made from representatives of all of the three "outside" counties.

Chairman of the Fond du Lac delegation, J. E. Jones, started the discussion on 2-way systems by asking what chance there would be for a 2-way system in the present set-up.

Relay Towers
"In the past and in the immediate present, a 2-way police radio system could and can be installed in our system," Cartwright answered. "We can have 2-way police radio transmission at the present time if we want it. That is, a 2-way system with a relay system added. Two-way system radio as utilized today by several cities in Wisconsin is effective and can be used where only a short distance has to be reached. The clarity of reception is as far as sending from squad car to central station is best in a radius of not more than eight to ten miles. In our 4-county hook-up, we would have to relay towers which would act as boosters to push the message into the central office."

Cartwright explained further that this fact was the main reason that 2-way radio had never been suggested for the present system. When asked as to the number of relays that would be necessary for this hook-up if a 2-way system were installed, Cartwright answered that it was a difficult problem to determine off-hand but there would, in his contention, be at least one for each county and in the past the price of the relay towers and units for the squad cars was almost prohibitive.

Peter Diny, Outagamie county representative, said: "We in the northern end are quite interested in 2-way systems. Many times we have an occasion to check up on our five policemen and haven't been able to do so as quickly as we would like."

Effective Unit
At this point Cartwright stated that a 2-way system manufacturer had contacted Winnebago county officials and stated that they had a unit that would effectively cover from 60 to 80 miles distance.

Asked if this coverage of a greater distance with the newer system would be affected by bad climatic and atmospheric conditions, Cartwright said that he was informed that the system still would cover that range of distance.

The chief radio operator said that a 2-way system, regardless of make or type, would be useless on motorcycles. Proper mounting and interference from the motor vehicle problems with the motorcycle, Cartwright explained.

Grimmer Defends Administration of State Game Farm

Answers Charge It Competed With Private Farms in Sale of Eggs

Madison —(AP)—Administration of the Poyntette game and bird farm was defended yesterday by W. F. Grimmer, superintendent of game for the state conservation department, in a hearing before a special assembly committee investigating the conservation commission.

Grimmer, in answer to accusations that the pheasant breeding industry had been neglected, and that large sums had been spent to establish a zoo, declared that in addition to educational and scientific values of the farm, it showed an "excellent return" on birds and eggs.

He asserted that a definite pheasant breeding program was being carried out, and that advertising and marketing assistance had been furnished for commercial pheasant breeders in Wisconsin.

Arthur MacArthur, Janesville pheasant breeder, charged that farm officials had competed with private breeders in selling pheasant eggs to the state of Iowa in 1938. Grimmer replied that he was informed by Iowa officials they had purchased state department products because of "unreasonably" high private bids.

Receipts of the transaction, Grimmer added, were included with other money to buy 500 pheasant hens from private Wisconsin dealers. Grimmer denied charges of department discrimination.

As for the site of the farm, Grimmer said the one at Poyntette was well suited for bird propagation, its soil was good for raising crops, and it had been selected after a thorough study.

The assertion that the farm laboratories had saved farmers much money was made by H. B. Kellogg, game farm manager. Numerous inquiries were answered by helping farmers solve problems, he said.

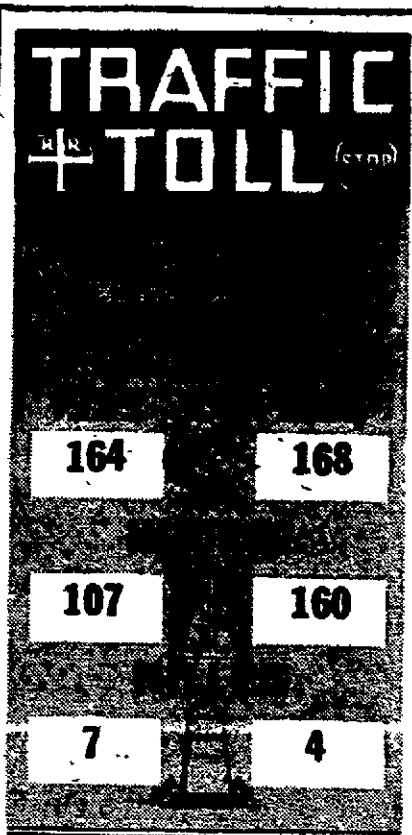

Kellogg declared no fur pelts or animals had been given to friends. At the conclusion of the hearing, Committee Chairman Genzmer (Dem.) of Mayville and Heden (Rep.) of Ogema said the committee would sift the remainder of the charges, eliminating any they believed unfounded. Another hearing was set for July 28.

Fair Weather in Store for Weekend

Continued Cloudiness Is Forecast in This Vicinity Tonight

Though cloudy skies obliterated the bright sun which shone this morning, the mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building climbed to 86 degrees early this afternoon. Continued cloudiness is forecast for Appleton and vicinity tonight while generally fair weather is expected to prevail Saturday and Sunday.

Maximum and minimum temperatures during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 82 degrees at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 60 degrees at 2 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Power company.

Highest and lowest temperatures reported yesterday by official government weather bureau stations were 108 degrees at Rapid City, S. D., and 37 degrees at Yellowstone, according to the Associated Press.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Treiber, 3174 Second street, Menasha, at St. Elizabeth hospital Thursday.

A daughter was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Roate Campbell, at St. Elizabeth hospital. Mrs. Roate is the former Miss Mildred Albrecht of Appleton.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Schroeder, 903 N. Morrison street, Tuesday.

The Winnebago county clerk contacted this company and others to obtain information in the most effective 2-way systems. The joint committee will meet again before the county boards in the various counties meet in their annual November sessions so that a formal report can be made to each of the boards and at the same time the boards with a budget drawn for the following year. The committee visited the radio room in the sheriff's office in the courthouse building and then the remote control unit at the Winnebago county farm, just north of Oshkosh.

session, blaming "weaknesses in administrative systems rather than personnel" for criticism of state agencies.

The would have separated judicial from administrative work. The assembly asserted that the administrative board carry to a logical end the ideas of the former governor as well as the state bar association.

The assembly by unanimous consent tabled yesterday a measure calling for reorganizing the highway commission. The senate already had rejected an identical measure sponsored by administration forces.

The surprise action, obtained by Assembly Speaker Vernon Thomson (R) of Richland Center, shoves the bill until a house majority decides to revive it for action.

There was no debate. Approval came after Assemblyman Mark S. Catlin, Jr. (R) of Appleton asked that it be laid over until next week. Thomson's motion drew no objection from Catlin.

Catlin, Thomson and Reuben W. Peterson (R) of Berlin said the action could not be interpreted as the end of legislative consideration of the measure, despite hints that it was. An opinion that some of the Heil reorganization measures might fall by the wayside because of dwindling support was made by a senate Republican leader last week.

The assembly refused, 65 to 17, to reject a tax measure increasing income and privilege dividend taxes and replacing the present inheritance tax with an estate levy. Assemblyman Ben Rubin (F-L-P) of Milwaukee, introduced the measure.

It would raise $25,000,000 for the biennial fund, of which $13,000,000 would be earmarked for old age pensions. A married man with two dependents, on an income basis of $2,500 to $3,000, would be taxed slightly less than now, but when the amount reached $5,000 the levies would increase. On $50,000 the tax would be $11,885 instead of $3,348, and on $100,000 it would be $28,268 instead of $10,531. The privilege dividend tax would be increased from 3 to 4 per cent.

After the vote, Peterson immediately moved reconsideration, laying the matter over two days. A bill raising the age limit of dependent children from 16 to 18 years and one reducing the mileage allowance on private cars driven in state service were killed.

The assembly rejected a resolution by Maurice Fitzsimons (D) of Fond du Lac, which would place before the voters in 1940 two questions relating to the employment of married women. Vote was 46 to 39. b7E questions were:

"Shall married women be employed in public service whose husbands earn $2,000 and $400 for each dependent annually?"

"Shall married women be employed in private employment whose husbands earn $2,000 and provisions as in the first question $400 for each dependent annually?"

A bill by Fitzsimons on the same was killed by the assembly last April.

The issue of price fixing codes of fair competition for service trades in the larger communities was brought back to life today when the senate approved a bill containing regulatory features which the assembly previously had rejected.

It passed 22 to 7 and sent to the house a measure allowing the state department of agriculture and markets to regulate prices, working hours and wages for barbers, cosmeticians, cleaners and dyers and shoe repairers.

Also included, through an amendment by Senator Taylor Brown (R) of Oshkosh, and A. J. Connors (P) of Barron, was a provision allowing farmers to band together to obtain cost of production plus a reasonable profit for their products.

The former code which expired last April, carried a similar provision but no farm code ever was established.

Borden Softball Team Defeated in Game at Waupaca

Crowd of 400 Sees Veterans Team Score 6 To 5 Victory

New London — Borden Industrial league softball team lost a 6 to 5 decision to the Wisconsin Veterans team at Waupaca Wednesday night in a 9-inning battle. The two teams, fighting before a crowd of about 400, were tied at 5-all at the end of the seventh and the Vets succeeded in breaking through for a victory in the last of the ninth.

Bordens were without half their regular players who stayed home for the Bulldog baseball game with Seymour and Lewis Sawall, first sacker, was taken from the game when he pulled some muscles in his side. A return game is planned later at Waupaca where softball draws good crowds.

Next week the Milkmen will start a championship play-off series with Gambles for the Industrial league title. Tentative plans are to stage the games under the lights at the city ball park and make a small charge as a benefit series for Leonard Dernbach, Borden catcher, who injured his foot in play this week and will be disabled for a number of weeks.

If Bordens defeat Gambles in the first game they will be tied for second half honors. When the second half is decided they will play off the first half tie and a possibility exists they may still have to battle another series for the season's championship. There will be no game this evening because of the Plywood benefit game under the lights.

It Is Said--

That the mystery of the mythical monster snake which was reported making gigantic tracks in New London gardens last week and stirring up the imaginations of townsfolk as to what it might be, was cleared up this week in a letter written by a 10-year-old boy, Dick Schwan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schwan, 1314 S. Pearl street, to the local newspaper. The letter went as follows: "Dear People: 'Don't be afraid of monstrous snakes any more. I guess it was only my dog that broke loose and dragged his chain. I was away and he got lonesome and looked for someone to play with. He gets so lonesome when I am away. I had his ten foot chain on a big spike but he got loose anyway. The chain was only one-half inch wide. I am very sorry if he went through gardens. I looked and looked for him but I couldn't find him. This is the first time he has been loose since April 1st. 'My dog chubs the ladder and goes down the chutes at school. He wouldn't hurt anyone. I won't let him get away again. 'Dick Schwan."

The Methodist Men were trodden under for another defeat by the Congregational Men, 16 to 8. Arnold Johnson and Henry Christensen tossed for the losers with Bob Andrews behind the plate. H. H. Helms and Monroe Brown hurled for the winners and Jim Lockyear caught.

Harvesting of Barley Is Getting Underway in Outagamie County

Harvesting of rye, oats and barley is being started by a number of farmers in Outagamie county this week, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent. The cool weather of the last week aided the barley crop considerably, Magnus said, by checking its ripening and giving the kernels a chance to fill out. A good crop is expected.

The hay season is nearly at an end and the work of harvesting the late pea crop also is at an end.

Kuehl Herd Leader in Butterfat Production

Waupaca—Martin Kuehl's herd of 12 registered and grade Holstein cows led the Waupaca County Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 1, in June with an average production of 1,182 pounds of milk or 41.9 pounds of butterfat. A cow in the Verne Hinchley herd was high in individual production with 1,545 pounds of milk containing 65.4 pounds butterfat.

Most members of the association are depending entirely on pastures for feed but some are feeding grain or silage or both, and consequently will hold up their production later in summer, especially on spring and summer fresh cows, according to Ismar Jacobson, tester.

Three Station Days Planned To Consider Farm Problems

Waupaca—Waupaca county farmers and homemakers have the choice of attending three station days, one at Marshfield, July 25; Hancock station day, July 27, and the Godington peat land tour, Aug. 3.

At Marshfield questions and problems dealing with the management of silt soils of central Wisconsin will be talked over with farmers and homemakers as they gather to view field plots and exhibits at the annual farm field day at the state branch experiment station near Marshfield.

It is requested that farmers bring specimens of plant disease to be identified and a treatment will be prescribed and diseases identified at the plant disease clinic to be conducted by R. E. Vaughn. Farmers who have any new weeds have been invited to bring in specimens for identification. George Briggs is in charge of the weed identification work. Exhibits will tell the findings of research and will give answers to practical farm problems.

The homemakers' program is planned by Home Agents in central Wisconsin. This part of the program is in charge of Miss Celia Schestock and Miss Clara Jones.

At the Hancock station, light soil farmers of Waupaca county may get pointers as to the green manuring, the use of fertilizers on light soils, trials of crops adapted to sandy soils, tillage practices, liming and phosphate experiments. The homemakers' program will also be presented at Hancock with the same people in charge as at Marshfield. Visitors may bring their lunches and will be able to procure coffee and refreshments on the grounds.

Dean L. Christensen of the college of agriculture, James Lacey and W. E. Witzel, will attend these station day meetings.

The station day at Godington is of a different type than the Marshfield or Hancock experiment station days. Farmers of Waupaca county who are farming muck or peat land, who hope to bring such land under cultivation, may take the opportunity to attend this station day.

No formal program is offered at Godington but the field work on general farm crops and special crops will be shown. A new phase of the work started in 1939 includes trials with fertilizers containing managanese, boron, copper, iron, sulphur, etc.

The tour will start at 10:30 in the morning of Aug. 3 at the J. D. Swan of Turtle Valley farms, with a short business meeting at noon. The group will then proceed to Wind Lake district, Doumen, Beaver Dam and Cambrie, seeing different phases of peat land farming in Wisconsin. In the forenoon of Aug. 3 stops will be made at Berlin, Redgranite and Plainfield, and then at the Godington experiment farm at 1:30 p. m.

Cincinnati sewer workmen unearthed a well-preserved coconut at a depth of 30 feet. They reported it still "gurgled" with fluid, though records indicated it may have been buried 70 years.

THE JAPS AND WANG

More of the details of Wang's purpose in China are becoming evident as it pulls the strings upon its puppets.

Obviously it does not intend to try to rule China in detail. The general outline of its plan is to permit the Chinese all sorts of local government so long as the main purpose of its attack is accomplished, and that purpose has to do solely with the development of China for trade. Thus we see again that business and commerce are the overtones and undertones of war.

Japan has already conquered a slice of China about as large as that part of our country east of the Mississippi river. Coincident with the establishment of government there it is to be noted that Wang Ching-wei, one of the original patriots of Chinese independence, has organized for the new district an alleged political party. The nub of the jest of course is that Wang never organized anything but that the Japs organized both the party and Wang. Since Wang carries quite an influence in Chinese circles, as is bound to be the case with one who was a confidant of Sun Yat-sen, the Japs have accomplished one objective in securing a prominent figure to lead their propagandized crusade for a New Deal in East China.

But meanwhile there is a vast and silent land to the west of the conquered territory from which occasionally issue forays in the shape of guerrilla bands to attack and disrupt the Japanese created governments. This vast and silent domain may create burdensome and perhaps unbearable problems for the Japs but it is not likely to do so unless it is reorganized, an operation that will consume much time.

Although Japan is sprawling all over her new territory and covering some of it only lightly she is in possession of China's main seaports, her six largest industrial centers and about 90 per cent of her railways. The vast and silent domain is woefully lacking in industry, transportation and the means of importing. She therefore presents all the virtues and powers of an agricultural land against the virtues and powers of an industrialized land. It was our own General Sherman who, at the outset of the Civil war, warned the confederacy that no predominantly agricultural area had ever yet succeeded in mortal combat with a predominantly industrial area.

It seems evident enough that Japan is willing to call her appetite satisfied with what she has if she can organize it to her advantage. Not that she is through upon the continent of Asia nor content with conquering what she has. But her compass needle is jerkily pointing toward the Russian provinces and her ambition is to clear Asia of whites. If she can obtain peace in China, and the chance to develop these new provinces in the manner she has worked upon Manchuria, she will have established a reservoir for troops that will sustain her even in the most prolonged and bitter warfare against Russia, her traditional enemy.

It is startling to note however that in selecting Wang to rule her new provinces Japan is adding another Socialist to the great number who now carry the banner of imperialism.

Wang's history was not unlike that of Hitler and Mussolini. He first achieved notoriety by attempting to assassinate the last Manchu Prince Regent at Peking. He built his public life upon his bitterness against China's ruling dynasty and supported revolution as the only means "for the people to gain their rights."

It might be quite inaccurate to call him a mere adventurer. The truth may be that he merely observed the impracticable nature of Socialism at the same time he had the opportunity to corner much power for himself.

He thus adds further proof that dictators only hate dictatorship in the hands of others.

THE MEANING OF BRANDS

Not long ago a Scottish firm sold several hundred cases of liquor which was a blend of 33 per cent Scotch and the balance whisky made in North Ireland. The company was taken to court for fraud because it labeled the whisky "Scotch." The appellate court indignantly denounced the methods employed as an imposition upon the public. Scotch whisky simply must be of the Scots. The hard-headed gentlemen of the bench could see nothing but falsehood in calling whisky from Ulster, Scotch.

The American can read this decision with some amazement. He remembers a time not so long ago when anything in this country was called Scotch if it merely had the odor of burnt corn.

May we not submit this decision to those institutions in this country which have authority over trade practices and let us, like the people who talk with a burr, lean backward to the end that brands shall tell an accurate story and never mislead?

THE EMBARGO AND NEUTRALITY

The President, supported by Mr. Hull, reasons something like this in respect to the attitude America should take toward foreign, and particularly, European affairs:

(1) War is likely to break out on a large scale in Europe at any moment.

(2) America cannot expect to remain aloof from such a war particularly if it continues for any length of time.

(3) It therefore becomes the duty of America, in its own defense, to try to stop the outbreak of war by demonstrating to possible warring states that our industries at the disposal of Britain and France, the latter will be pretty sure to win the war.

We agree with the first premise. We may add that the world may call itself startled beyond measure if war does not break out in Europe anywhere from 5 to 20 years hence, as the involved nations consider themselves fit and ready. But the error in the Roosevelt reasoning is the acceptance of the notion that America must enter that war and participate in it. The reasons in support of this assertion are particularly weak and shallow. It is just that sort of reasoning that tickles Europe into gales of laughter. And the reasoning has "Made in Europe" stamped all over it.

There is at least as much, and perhaps more, reason to believe that if we declare unequivocally that no war in Europe can ever interest us Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Russia will settle their grievances. The very idea, the colossal impudence, if you please, of England telling Germany that she will attack her if the Germans take over Danzig, a German city, or that the Germans are warmongers because they want back the colonies of which they were despoiled at Versailles should tend to give us a better picture of the underlying causes of disturbance, however much better we may admire the English form of government over that existing in Berlin. Would it not be just as appropriate for Germany to threaten England with war unless the latter permitted the Irish Free State to take over Ulster?

An embargo upon the shipment of arms from this country is not supportable in logic. An embargo, however, upon the further handling of our foreign affairs by the President beyond such rights as may be given to him by the constitution, will undoubtedly inure to our safety, and perhaps the safety of Europe as well.

EFFORT IS STILL REWARDED

A. Swede came over to this country 38 years ago when he was 23 and went to work. He was known as Gideon Sundback and he settled in Pennsylvania. He had a curious turn of mind and even when others gave him the merry jingle of their laughter he kept upon his determined way.

Mr. Sundback has registered in his name numerous patents on the zipper. He is responsible for the company that makes most of these slide fasteners and that now employs nearly 5,000 workers. But something more than inventive genius must be chalked up to this immigrant of 1903 for he succeeded during the blackest peace days America has probably ever known, this prolonged and chronic depression.

What Mr. Sundback thought of that breed that should be known as the American weaklings and who talked about the frontiers all having gone, as though they would pioneer if they had the chance, he never has said. He just made his own frontiers. And he made them at the time when the voluble sobbers and big tear splashers were lying down and wiggling out of the harness on the ground there wasn't anything more to do anyway.

The item in itself is not of so much moment in a land of 130 million people except to impress anew the fact that those who can coin new and practical ideas and stick to them will come to fortune.

Inherently the principle is no different than that which underlies the success of the man at Hollywood because he can act or the soprano in grand opera because she can sing, or the artist who will be followed to an attic if he can paint and of the fame that comes to the sculptor who can transfer human lineaments into everlasting marble.

A Versc for Today

A LIFE

In the morning, there was storm.
Noon, too brief was clear and warm.
Afternoon, the clouds piled high.
In a discontented sky.
Twilight found its own rare blue;
Then the quiet evening grew.
Beautiful, as through its bars
Trooped the shy and distant stars.
My life's morning, dark with showers,
Held few happy childish hours,
And the sun was dimmed too soon

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—It is a philosophy of Phil Baker, the comedian, that no success can come to anyone in any field of endeavor unless there has been a background of struggle and suffering. He does not believe that flashes in the pan or stage stars who leap up from nowhere can have any permanent, worthwhile success; and he does not believe that a child is likely to grow to be a worthy adult unless his youth is heavy with struggle.

We sat at dinner, and he used the table cloth and a knife to illustrate his point. Drawing a cross on the linen, he said: "Life is like that. A cross. We start at the bottom, and we must spend long years in climbing, pulling, struggling to reach the top. No one who gets there except by struggle and suffering is important. I think it is the duty of every parent, no matter how well off financially he may be, to see that his children are compelled to learn by experience what trouble and obstacles and effort are."

Baker, one of the veterans of vaudeville's halcyon days who has kept rank as a comic even though vaudeville has come a cropper, is the father of four children.

"How," I asked him, "can you possibly provide an opportunity for struggle and suffering for your children? You have a beautiful home. You have all the things that go to make for comfort. Even if you believe children should come up the hard way, how can they when their parents have plenty of money?"

"Come to my house," Baker said, "and you shall see. Take the case of the boy, who is not yet five years old. Look at his room. His walls are of cardboard. There are only two toys. There is a small phonograph with only one record—an excerpt from a Tchaikovsky symphony. He plays it over and over. If adults are near, and if they dare to talk while the record is playing, the boy looks at them reprovingly and says: 'Shhh!'"

"Already we are arranging for the children's education. One may go to an English school where there will be no pampering, another to Canada. They will be separated, and they will be removed from any opportunity for mollycoddling. They will grow up to know that there can attain no importance as individuals except as they themselves climb that cross."

On the day we talked, two of Baker's children were in a suburban hospital for tonsillitis, and throughout the conversation the comedian's features were lined with worry. Once he went to telephone the hospital, and even the assurance that everything was all right did not relieve his anxiety.

"At one point Baker's eyes filled with tears. 'I had to lie to the boy,' he said, brokenly. 'I never lied to him before. I told him that today we would go on a picnic—a big picnic. I took him to the hospital, and they put out his tonsils. The expression in his eyes when he looked at me! I had lied. That's an awful thing to do to your son.'"

"Most parents," I soothed, "have to fib to their youngsters occasionally. It's nothing to worry about, Phil."

"But I lied to him; lied. I didn't ever want to lie to my boy." And down the cheeks of Phil Baker, professional funny man, ran tears, unashamed.

Baker told me he looks forward to the day when he can quit being a comedian. "There are symphonies I want to hear, books I want to read," he said, "I want to be able to go to Carnegie Hall, or to the Metropolitan Opera House, and sit back, relaxed. I want to be able to concentrate upon fine music, fine literature. Why can't any hard-working comedian? Because every waking moment my mind subconsciously is developing gags, figuring out funny lines, inventing things to make people laugh. As long as a comedian is active, his mind never enjoys a moment's freedom from his job. That's why I can't enjoy music, books or even my friends fully, as other people do. It is, I suppose, the tragedy of being a comedian."

An unusual guessing contest was then underway at Schlafers hardware store. Six bushels of bean spoons were spread out in the window and a person making the closest estimate of the number of spoons was to receive an enlargement of any negative he submitted. The spoons were all taken from film that was developed by the Schlafers photography department.

THOSE DROLL FRENCH
France has suspended the municipal privileges of Marseilles, its second city, and takes over supervision of the city government.

"Liberty is a difficult regime and must be deserved," pronounced Paul Reynaud, minister of finance. "This, the city of Marseilles and the nation must understand."

In seven years under a Socialist administration, Monsieur Reynaud told the chamber of deputies, the Marseilles debt has quadrupled and municipal expenses have risen 36 per cent. Apartments there are so heavily taxed that in some instances the taxes are higher than the rent.

"The city has only one modern ladder for its fire department. Its hospitals are the most expensive and worst run in France. Firms supplying them with drugs cannot collect their bills. Recently they arrested a woman who was selling beggars' licenses of her own manufacture for twenty francs apiece. Asked how she had come to start this illicit business, she said she had inherited it from her mother. . . . The cause of all this irregularity arises purely out of degradation of authority and evasion of responsibility."

A debt quadrupled in seven years? Expenses up 36 per cent? The French are so easily excited is it not so?—The Saturday Evening Post.

Twilight brought a dream of peace,
With the painful day's release,
And the absence of all strife

A Bystander
In Washington

BY JOSEPH W. MARTIN, JR.
Republican Leader, House of Representatives
(Pinch-hitting for Freston Grover, on vacation)

Washington—Under the American system of representative government, political parties are the instruments through which the people undertake to make their government responsive to their needs and desires.

On the party in power falls the responsibility for governing the country wisely and well. On the minority party falls the duty of pointing out those occasions when the party in power fails to achieve those objectives and of proposing constructive alternatives of action.

Such is the function of our two-party system. The purpose of the two-party system in America is to make government the servant of all the people and thus promote the general welfare of the entire country, including all groups and all classes. When the two-party system functions properly as it has during the last six months in Washington—the best interests of the country are served.

The Republicans in the present session of congress have made a distinct contribution to wise government and to the welfare of the country. They have been able to do so because at last year's election their numbers were sufficiently increased, especially in the House of Representatives, to make them an effective minority party and thus able to perform their normal function of acting as a check on hasty, ill-considered or unwise legislative action.

For six years prior to the present congress, the majority party overwhelmingly out-numbered the minority. In many instances the party in power rode roughshod over the minority, ignoring their suggestions and their criticisms. The result was the enactment of hodge-podge legislation, much of it unwise, more of it defective and some of it unconstitutional.

The result also was the delegation of authority to the Chief Executive on such a scale that many persons have become gravely concerned over the consequences of placing so much power in one man's hands. Even the Chief Executive himself has conceded that his party in power has built up new instruments of public power which in the hands of the wrong men "would provide shackles for the liberties of the people."

While the minority party was impotent, Congress passed a long series of bills subsequently held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. Congress enacted legislation so defective it was necessary to amend or repeal it. Take the tax on undistributed net earnings of corporations. When this bill first was before the Congress, the Republican party pointed out that it was impracticable and predicted its evil effects on recovery and employment. Their objections were ignored. But all they predicted came true, and this year a stronger Republican minority succeeded in bringing about the repeal of this tax.

The Social Security act had desirable objectives but due to unwise methods of reaching these objectives the latter never could have been achieved under terms of the bill as originally passed. The Republican minority at the time pointed out the impracticability of the so-called $47,000,000,000 reserve fund for old-age pensions and the hardship imposed by an increasing scale of payroll taxes. In this session of Congress the merit of their contentions was recognized even by the Roosevelt administration and the law now is in the process of being amended.

These two examples demonstrate how an alert, militant minority party can render constructive service to the nation. Examples could be cited day after day in which the minority is responsible for correcting legislation pending before committees by searching for the defects.

Our liberties and our democracy will be safe as long as we have in congress a watchful strong minority party, ready and willing to perform its duty of checking imprudent action by the party in power.

Just a Step
Behind the News

By Dave Boone

As if asking German men to cut out second order helpings and favor sweet cider over lager beer wasn't enough, German women are now urged to disregard style and stick to a dress or hat until it begins to unravel. That looks to me like the last straw. Any government that thinks it is strong enough to make a woman wear the same costume two seasons is in for trouble.

A newspaper organ of the elite guard declares that style changes are "incompatible with the new German spirit of controlled economy" and warns the women that when they set aside an old dress for a new one, they are "guilty of discarding valuable materials." I can see the frauds and frauds yelling whatever is the German equivalent of "Is that so?" right now.

"A dress should be discarded only when it is worn out or outgrown," the elite guard says. Well, nothing will make the democratic nations feel safer than news that the "axis" has agreed to stand or fall on that issue. Try to make a woman give up being fashionable and you're licked before you start.

If I were directing British and French policy, I'd try to get Hitler to follow the "less-is-more" style" stuff with an edict prohibiting the gals from using vanity cases. That would speed the revolt and have Hitler back at his paperhanging in no time.

HOW LONG WILL THAT HOLD US?

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—As a working newspaperman, this correspondent previously commented "on Governor Heil's press relations, and his troubles on that score."

Now it appears that not only the reporters, who are interested only in writing the news, but the Republican politicians, who are interested in eliminating what they feel has been a "bad press" toward Heil, are beginning to become interested in the situation.

It is apparent that due to a combination of inexperience in public life, and equally inexperienced advice from his trusted assistants, Governor Heil has come to an impasse with the capitol press corps. For the benefit of those Republicans who may have noticed the problem, and have wondered what to do about it, this column would like to explain that if the newspapers on occasion have seemed to be rough on the Republican administration, it was in large part due to the fact that those newspapers' capitol representatives have been unable to break the wall of reserve which surrounds Heil and his secretariat.

There has been so little opportunity for presentation of the authentic administration point of view that there has been no necessity to resort to speculation and gossip, rumors and guesses. Governor Heil hasn't granted a formal press interview since he took office on January 2. What his objections to a system which has been utilized successfully and satisfactorily by almost all of his predecessors in modern times are, reporters don't know. What they do know, and what the keener Republicans are also beginning to observe, is that he is deliberately passing up opportunities to present his side of current public issues to the people of the state.

SECRETARIES INTERFERE
That Heil's secretaries are responsible for the situation seems established. (Secretary Arthur Tiller, a former newspaperman, must be excepted, however).

Twice, on his own initiative, the author of this column has interviewed Heil, but the approach was to him directly, not through his assistants. On both occasions a good story resulted, while Heil was pleased to be able to explain his viewpoint on questions current then. He was kind, courteous, appeared to be completely honest in explaining his plans and positions.

Not only that, but he invited further interviews, said that he enjoyed them and the idea that the newspapers were interested in him. This reporter and a colleague took him at his word, and a week or two later tried again. This time one of the secretaries intervened. "No more," was the edict.

Then recently Heil expressed a desire to meet at dinner with the capitol press corps, numbering during legislative sessions about 18 persons. The secretaries promptly vetoed that too, as unwise.

And so the problem remains. The executive office feels that the newspapers aren't giving Heil a fair shake, and yet the newspapers are given no opportunity for contact with the man who is the biggest single news source in the capitol, and in the whole field of state politics today.

It appears that the newspapermen may have to take the initiative in obtaining the rapprochement which seems to be necessary. One of

The substance now identified as thiamin is pure vitamin B, which occurs only together with several other factors in the group called vitamin B-complex. Klubs Blank Ritz Tavern Team, 13-0

Powers Gives Losers Only One Hit, Gets 12 Strikeouts

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Klubs downed Ritz Tavern, 13-0, in a city softball league tilt last night at the library grounds diamond as Powers limited the losers to one hit while striking out twelve and issuing only one walk. The victory put the Klubs in second place in the city loop with two wins and a loss.

The Ritz team's sole hit was made by Kaphingst, first baseman, who came to the plate with two outs and was left on base when the next man up fanned. Batteries for the losers were Andreyski and Gertz.

Two home runs in the seventh inning featured the seven-run scoring spree of the Klubs. The four-baggers were collected by Powers and Eiting. The game's first run was scored by Neize who came home on Rovers' hit. The Klubs were aided considerably in scoring by the numerous errors of the Ritz team.

Legion Juniors Defeated Again

Kaukauna Team Out of Running for District Championship

Kaukauna—The American Legion baseball nine lost its chance to play in the district tournament at Wisconsin Rapids when the Oconto Falls team took a 17-2 victory yesterday afternoon in a game played at the Kaukauna baseball park. The local team was defeated 11-4 Tuesday afternoon in the first of the series played at Oconto.

Matt Poradek, Oconto Falls pitcher, allowed only four hits, fanned six but walked five men. He was replaced on the mound by Magnin who struck out two and walked one.

Spice made the first tally for Kaukauna in the ninth inning when, after getting to first on balls, he came home on a hit by Peters who also had a hit in the first inning.

The second run was scored by Giordana who gained first on an error and crossed the home plate on a hit by Franz Rieth, Kaukauna pitcher, accounted for the locals' other hit when he connected in the eighth inning.

Oconto Falls' 17 hits were well distributed among its players with Poradek, Johnson, Gerhart, Schultz, Kneiger, Luderan, Reed and Magnin each garnering two. Kneiger, first baseman, scored runs in the second, third, fourth and seventh innings, followed by Poradek and DiOnne with three runs apiece.

Kaukauna players made nine errors as compared with one for the visitors.

Kaukauna—With six months of the year in the background, the city treasury's prospects look bright for half of the funds in the year's budget still remain, according to the treasurer's report for the month of June.

Last month a balance of $7,184.52 in the Sewage Disposal fund left over after completion of the project was transferred to the Contingent fund leaving a total balance in the latter of $45,979.79.

The motorboat association could not definitely decide for another two weeks or more whether or not the races could be held here. The local group felt that if such sanc-

Marvin Schuler To Pitch Against Oshkosh Sunday

Wins for Kaukauna, Kimberly Would Give Brews First Place

Kaukauna—Marvin "Dago" Schuler is slated to take the mound for the Kaukauna Mellow Brews when they meet the Oshkosh Cabs in a Fox River valley league tilt Sunday afternoon at the Kaukauna baseball park. The game is scheduled for 2:30.

The Kaws beat the Cabs, 10 to 6, in the first half game at Oshkosh with Eddie Schuler pitching, but if the visiting team wins it will give them a tie with Kaukauna, each having three wins and two losses. However a victory for Kaukauna and a victory for Kimberly over Menasha will give the Mellow Brews the league-lead with four wins and 1 loss.

It is likely that Beibel and Klobier, Cab hurlers, will divide mound duties. Beibel pitched five-hit ball last Sunday. Bobby Roth, is a newcomer on the Oshkosh team.

Sunday's game will again see Carl Schuler, Kaw shortstop, filling Joe Vill's gap in right field, with Vils switched to left field taking Gib Busse's place. Busse, star outfielder with a batting average of .421, has been out of play for several weeks, but is expected to be back in the line-up soon.

Senate Gambles in Failing To Act on Embargo Repeal

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—In refusing to grant Mr. Roosevelt's request for repeal of the arms embargo, the senate is gambling on the chance that there will be no European war in the next few months.

If war should come, the senate will be left with the responsibility for having encouraged it by refusing to take action that would release arms and munitions for Great Britain and France. Senator Borah accepted that responsibility in his frank and warm debate with Mr. Roosevelt during the White House conference Wednesday night.

Both President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull argued that secret government information pointed to the danger of war. They argued earnestly that repeal of the embargo would give pause to Hitler and possibly restrain him.

Senator Borah was frankly unimpressed with this as were some other participants in the conference. Senator Borah, who defied Woodrow Wilson on the league of nations, was quick to accept the challenge when President Roosevelt said something about taking the issue to the country and fixing responsibility on the senate. Senator Borah would welcome that.

Senator Borah and told the president he was ready to give the country the other side. He scoffed at state department fears of war and, without intending to do so, gave personal offense to Secretary Hull, who thought the senator was reflecting upon the conduct of the state department.

Vice-President Garner intervened as peacemaker, reminding the president that he would need the senate next winter as much as the senate would need him.

It ended pleasantly enough, with Mr. Roosevelt himself writing out in pencil the two statements which were issued afterward, one on behalf of himself and Secretary Hull and the other on behalf of the senators, who accepted his draft without change.

Situation May Be Tempting to Hitler

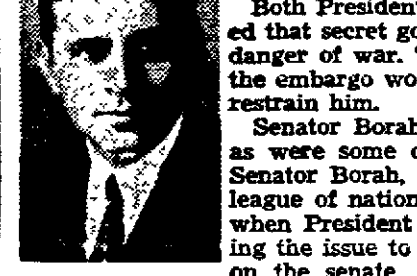

Although senators said neither the president nor Secretary Hull gave them much specific information to support their fears of war, it may be said that these fears rest largely upon the belief that the situation is tempting to Hitler.

There is doubt whether Great Britain and France can make the financial and economic concessions which will enable Hitler to pull himself out of the economic condition into which he has put Germany. Such concessions probably would call in return for disarmament, throwing out of work some 6,000,000 German workers. Hitler would face difficulties in develop-

The Western Condensing company, 935 E. John street, reported today it will revamp its boilers in an effort to eliminate what residents of that neighborhood call a smoke nuisance.

A petition asking that the smoke be abated was presented to the city council at Wednesday night's meeting. It was signed by people living in the vicinity of the condensing company. The company has also purchased blowers to thin the smoke.

On the other hand, with 14,000,000 men in the axis as against 7,000,000 or so between the British and French, and with German superiority in mechanized war equipment, there is the possibility of a quick decision through a heavy, ruthless, unrestrained attack. Even if Hitler failed to win a quick decision, he could dig in behind the Siegfried line, and probably wrangle a peace out of the democracies without being much worse off than before. Hitler's calculations probably are based on a considerable contempt for the military endurance of the democracies, and their lack of zest for war.

That probably is the way the situation looks throughout Hitler's eyes, as nearly as we can judge. Nevertheless, many senators do not take these affairs seriously. Some of them think Mr. Roosevelt is merely trying to make good on an understanding with the British and French that he would get rid of the embargo. They suspect that is

Care of Nose and Ears Is Important When Swimming

Madison — "Let's go swimming," is the call that is heard a great deal during the hot midsummer days. The state medical society in a health bulletin today urged that proper precautions be taken as to time of entering the water, length of swim as guided by physical ability and tolerance, and the care of the nose and ears.

"Children in normal health are always active and can therefore enter into summer exercise with little preparatory training. Adults, however, who lead a sedentary life all the year around cannot expect to partake of strenuous exercise in the short time allotted for a vacation. We have heard many times that we should avoid swimming after meals, keep out of polluted water, and avoid overexertion at all times, but especially when in deep water. But how many of us pay any attention to our ears and noses? "To be absolutely safe from nasal and ear infection while in the water, mouth breathing is the simplest for the majority; however, inhalation through the mouth and exhalation from the nose is permissible for the more expert swimmer. Nasal exhalation must be timed to occur when contact is made with the water. If plunging or diving is the mode of entering the water, nasal exhalation at the moment of contact is necessary for safety. Never jump into the water unless the nostrils are both pinched shut either with the fingers or by a suitable nose clamp. One must always remember that the nasal passages and the throat of perfectly healthy individuals harbor germs. If the nasal mucosa is covered with its protective secretion no invasion of the deeper structures will ensue. However, prolonged bathing will wash away this normal secretion and open up avenues for infection. "May Cause Mastoid "The ear rarely is infected by way of the external canal or outer ear. The middle ear opens through the Eustachian tube into the back of the nose, and it is here that the start of infection usually occurs. Most of our serious summer mastoid infections begin with a so-called swimmer's ear, a purulent infection of the middle ear, which, if not immediately drained, will cause infection of the mastoid bone. Inflammation of the Eustachian tube with subsequent closure is the commonest cause of hearing impairment. "Should you be so unfortunate as to contract an ear or sinus infection while in swimming, go to see your physician at once. He will be able to tell you how severe the infection is and how important it is to relieve it at once if surgical attention is necessary. "Remember it is of utmost importance to breathe correctly during swimming. Mouth breathing is preferred for the novice. Only the expert who can properly time his contact with the surface of the water is permitted to exhale through the nose. Those who have sinus or ear involvement that is no longer acute may go swimming only if they follow the precautionary measures of blocking the nasal and ear openings. Under no circumstances can water be permitted to enter the nose or ear. Only then may we eliminate much of the unnecessary suffering of those who indulge in so healthful a sport as swimming."

Friends Give Party For Man Doomed to Succumb to Cancer

New York—A—Warned by physicians that he would die of cancer within a few months, Claude Joseph Bradley, 53, a cement salesman, was the life of the party given for him Wednesday night by 20 friends at the Montauk club. Bradley himself said it was a gay and lively affair "for a coming corpse," with jokes and tall stories, laughter and clinking glasses—and for more than an hour, Bradley played the piano. At his table there was a vase of roses, and he picked one and put it in his lapel. Bradley said physicians gave him only two or three months to live. "But maybe they were wrong," he said. "Anyway, before they put roses on my chest, it's going to be a tough fight." It was "a swell blowout," Bradley said, adding that if he accepted all the invitations for weekends and parties and trips he received at the party, he'd "have to live for 24 years." Many Helsingfors, Finland, shopkeepers and railway employes are learning English in preparation for the 1940 Olympics there.

Won't Cut Salaries At Teacher Colleges

Madison—The board of normal regents announced Thursday that despite the reduction in its budget by the legislature it would attempt to operate the state teachers colleges without any salary cuts for employees.

The operating budget of the colleges was reduced about $2 per cent and the regents, at a meeting yesterday, discussed plans for economies to avoid pay cuts.

"We will start out the school year with salary schedules remaining as they are," said E. G. Doudna, board secretary. "Whether we will be able to continue remains to be seen. That will have to be determined later."

Because of time consumed in the budget discussion, the board took no action on the appointment of presidents to fill vacancies at the La Crosse and Stevens Point colleges. Doudna said the matter was not considered. The board will meet next month.

The largest cotton crop in 12 years, estimated at between 135,000 and 150,000 bales, is being gathered in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas.

Municipal Pool To be Completed About October 1

Work on $150,000 Project Is Well Ahead Of Schedule

Neenah—Construction on the new $150,000 swimming pool and recreation building will be completed about the first of October, nearly three months ahead of the contract deadline, according to Frank Theu, Oshkosh, architect for the Fluor Brothers Construction company, the contractors.

The pool and buildings have been completed to a point where visualization of the finished job is possible. The pool is nearly finished and the skeleton frames of buildings gradually are taking permanent shape. About 75 per cent of the grading around the buildings and the parking lot has been finished.

Four Concrete Floor With the exception of the north end, the sides of the pool have been finished and about half of the floor has been done. Ten days of pouring concrete will finish that part of the job.

Pouring of the concrete floor in the women's dressing room will be completed today, the roof and gallery overlooking the pool already having been done. The floor and roof on the men's dressing room have been finished and work on the walls for both rooms will get underway next week.

Construction of the mother's room and the recreational rooms has been delayed pending the arrival of special materials.

There are more than 50 men working on the job.

11,000 Neenah Swimmers Use Municipal Beach Facilities

Neenah—Despite cold weather and intermittent sieges of algae, the green aquatic growth which is abundant in Lake Winnebago when the wind is from a certain direction, more than 11,000 swimmers have used facilities at the municipal bathing beach, according to Ole Jorgensen, chief life guard.

The life guard reported, however, that this has been one of the poorest swimming seasons in years, even worse than last year. There is more algae than usual and this summer it came much earlier than in past seasons.

During warm weather and when the algae isn't present, the average daily attendance at the beach ranges between 500 and 600, while the maximum has been well over 800.

Jorgensen reported that 10 rescues have been made by him and his crew of life guards, but none of the accidents were serious.

Because each succeeding summer the time for swimming is more limited as well as more unpleasant, swimmers are beginning to realize the advantages they will have when the new $150,000 swimming pool, which is being built only a few rods south of the present municipal beach, is completed.

Although doctors and scientists agree that algae itself isn't harmful to swimmers, it makes swimming exceedingly unpleasant.

Another disadvantage is that one day there will be an excessive amount of the foliage in the water while the next morning, or even later in the same day, the water will have cleared, depending entirely upon the direction of the wind.

Voluntary Dental Care Plan Forecast in U. S.

Milwaukee—(AP)—Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, New York, who took office Thursday as president of the American Dental association, said the nation's organized dentists probably would offer within a year a voluntary prepayment insurance plan to help low income groups meet dental bills.

A special committee will study the problem during the coming year, he said.

"We will present plans that we think will be fair to the taxpayers, the recipient of dental care and to the profession," Dr. Merritt said. "Our conclusions will be based upon a survey made with the help of thousands of dentists."

Declares Victims of Thetic Disaster Did Not Suffer Severely

London—(AP)—Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, who sealed himself in a steel chamber for 144 hours as a human guinea pig, said Thursday his experiments indicated that victims of the submarine Thetic disaster drifted into death without severe pain.

The story of the noted scientist's tests was given to a special tribunal investigating the tragedy.

(The Thetic was lost June 1 in a practice dive in Liverpool bay. Of the 103 men aboard, only four escaped. Of the 99 dead, three were known to have lost their lives in attempts to leave the vessel with artificial lungs.)

Haldane declared of his research: "I believe the men suffered absolutely no severe pain. They may have had headaches. The sensation of panting which you get is very definitely unpleasant but it is not the intolerable feeling of bursting lungs which you get if you are, for example, buried alive or if you are breathing through very serious resistance. No one can say it is pleasant but it could not be called torture."

Movie Land Its People and Products

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — Off-hand, I can't think of a better way to illustrate the fickleness of Hollywood fortune than to cite the puzzling case of Gene Raymond, who for the past two years has twiddled his thumbs while the studio moguls have bewailed the dearth of box-office personalities available.

If Gene isn't a box-office personality I've never met one. Perhaps he isn't the greatest actor imaginable and perhaps a few of his last pictures did unsatisfactory business. But since when has great acting been the only salable screen commodity?

And why blame Gene Raymond because a studio forced him to play in a picture that no personality could have? The fact remains that he always was, and still is, one of a very few stars whose entire popularity was built on personal appeal. His fans were rabid fans—the kind whose enthusiasm constituted a pre-production guarantee of a mighty nice chunk of money in the theatres' tills. It's ridiculous to let a man with an established following of that kind stagnate on the sidelines. Surely he is a safer gamble than the unknown who come to the screen without a single fan boosting their stock.

Hollywood producers have always referred to show business as a gamble and to themselves as gamblers. It seems to me that they are very cowardly gamblers—and they prove their lack of nerve by their inability to back their best bets through any sudden flurry of bad luck. One or two unprofitable pictures and they throw in their dependable aces and cry for a new deal.

SUNDAY'S GAMES

New London at Clintonville (night).
Green Bay at Two Rivers.

CLINTONVILLE — Gene Volkman, Clintonville Trucker catcher, and Ty Steff, second baseman, pulled the first half champions out of their losing streak in a night game played here yesterday against the Two Rivers Polar Bears. The score was 6 to 4. It was the first league victory for the Trucks in the last four starts and also marked the first win of the second half. Both Volkman and Steff contributed home runs, Steff getting his in the fourth inning and Volkman winning the game with his circuit smash in the eighth. Wallie Raasch did a fine job on the mound for the victors. Lefty Fortin likewise turned in a splendid performance for the losers.

Steff, in addition to his home run, hit three out of four. He opened the first inning with a single. Floyd Towser, who played at third in place of Rollie Kersa, who is on the sidelines as the result of an injury received last Sunday at Seymour, advanced Steff to third with a single. Fortin allowed the first run to come in for the Trucks when he threw one in the dirt. Steff scored.

Not until the fourth inning could the Bears connect with a run. Smoky Smogoleski hit a long fly to center field. Both Al Anderson and Leo Fox, outfielders, went after the ball and in a near collision both dropped it and Smogoleski went to third. Butch Prucha bunted and Smogoleski home for the Bears' first marker. But the Trucks were not long in the rear cornering through in their half of the inning with three runs.

Steff hits Homer
Anderson, the first batter, grounded out and Gene Volkman scored on first with a hit. Don Fierke, who played at first for the first time for the Trucks, was safe on a fielder's choice which forced Volkman at second for the second out. Wallie Raasch singled and then Ty Steff came through with his circuit drive over the centerfield wall to score three runs. In addition to the home run which Steff drove in with a home run, both Steff and Volkman were made richer with the $1 bill which Mayor A. A. Washburn donates for each home run. A local merchants also donates breakfast food.

In the sixth inning, the Bears struck through with another run. Jimmy Blue singled and a double by Eddie Raab brought in Two Rivers' second run.
In the seventh, the Bears scored another run. Herman hit a long single and in fielding the ball Anderson erred allowing Herman to go to second. Garske grounded out but Herman went to third and then scored on a hit by Milt Saroch.
In the ninth inning, the Bears clinched their scoring. Smogoleski was walked and sacrificed to second. Then, with Laurent pinch-hitting for Muldowney and striking out, Smogoleski attempted to steal third. Gene Volkman threw the ball wild at third and Smogoleski scored the run which tied the ball game at 4-4.

Larry Casper, first batter for the Trucks in the eighth, struck out. Leo Fox, right fielder, singled and stole second while Anderson singled. Volkman then pulled the game out of the park and put one out of the park to give Clintonville a 6 to 4 victory.

Chaffin Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

PHIL ZWICK may not have gotten a tumble in Wisconsin but he's making good out on the west coast. At least it would appear that way after getting a copy of the ring magazine, The Knockout, from Phil just yesterday.

Zwick is mentioned in numerous places in the magazine. Under a picture of Baby Arizmendi, the latter is noted as ready to fight Zwick or any of the lads. A big picture of Phil on another page mentions he recently beat Nick Peters in one of the most exciting fights ever seen in Hollywood and that he has been rematched for Aug. 4.

A columnist's comment is that if Zwick beats Peters on Aug. 4, a group of movie fans are going to demand he fight Hammering Henry Armstrong. Another bout being talked of for Phil is with Joey Archibald, the feather champ, and Phil would be elated if he landed it. Incidentally, Peters was ranked No. 4 lightweight before he lost to Zwick. By all odds Phil now should be in the No. 4 slot behind Ambers, Angott and Day.

Eighteen Butte des Morts golfers had answered Heber Pelkey's request for rush entries for the state amateur golf tournament yesterday. They included R. K. Wolter, D. P. Steinberg, D. P. Steinberg, Jr., J. J. Plank, R. E. Meade, William Plank, August Brandt, Ralph McGowan, Heber Pelkey, F. C. Steinke, Art Lemke, A. W. August, R. W. Shepherd, J. R. Shields, Nick Engler, George H. Beckley, J. W. Lawlor and J. N. Fischer. Others are expected to register before the closing date, tomorrow.

There are four events. They are the amateur championship event, the intermediate event, the senior event and the father and son event.

Lawrence college men's club has a golf tourney and dinner scheduled for its next meeting on Wednesday, July 26. Riverview will be the scene of activities. Dick Graef is accepting reservations.

Had a letter from Percy Clapp out at Colorado State college of Education, Greeley, Colorado. He wished Joe Shields luck in his new work and extended best wishes to "any of the old gang." He says he hears a little about Appleton from Wisconsin boys going to school out there.

Dashing Chicago White Sox Tumble Boston by 4 to 0

Score Second Shutout in Two Days; Yanks Cop Eighth Straight

CHICAGO — (P) — Chicago's dashing White Sox, who had not won a shutout victory until Johnny Rigney turned the trick Wednesday, made it two in a row yesterday behind Thornton Lee, again at the expense of the Boston Red Sox.

The score was 4 to 0, Chicago landing on Denny Galehouse for all its runs in the first inning. The White Sox won four out of five games in the series with Boston, which recently was climbing toward first place with a string of 12 straight triumphs.

Chicago, meantime, crept within three and a half games of the second place Red Sox, in extending its spree to 15 triumphs in the last 19 games.

Lee gave up nine hits, but four double plays choked off Boston efforts.

LITTLE CHUTE—With the season drawing to a close, the Outagamie County league race is as hectic as ever. The Northern division top position is a 2-way tie between Black Creek and Nichols with Freedom largely the cause. It whitewashed the Creekers last Sunday, 2 to 0, while Nichols was defeating Shiocton. If Nichols can stop Freedom next Sunday a 2-way tie will result with the title battle being at Nichols when Black Creek invades the former village for the finals game of the season on July 30. Next Sunday, Black Creek will be host to Shiocton with a victory for the Creekers almost certain. Shiocton still has to gain a victory.

In the Southern division, Appleton will trek to Greenville Grange and try to hold onto the league lead. The Grangers still have a chance for the top. They have a postponed game to play with the Greenville Merchants and three straight wins may bring them the championship.

In the other Southern division battle, Little Chute will meet Greenville Merchants at the latter park. The Chuters must win to have a chance for top honors. Last Sunday they showed power at the plate to swamp the Grangers with a barrage of 22 hits good for 20 runs. On the other hand, Greenville Merchants dropped a close tilt to Cozy Tavern team of Appleton.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

At a very tender age JEAN ARTHUR of the screen radiates a captivating personality. Her genuine sweetness is loved by many.

Numerous young girls would like to have a secret formula for acquiring charm! They have the idea that charm can be added to one's personality through the purchase of a few magic creams and the help of a good hairdresser. Those girls are thinking of outward personal attraction rather than the intangible essence of a personality which alone can be termed as "charm."

There is no easy compromise with oneself if you desire to possess charm. Your outward appearance must be attractively groomed, your mind must be nourished and expanded, and your conduct ever gracious. A pretty big order! Yes, girls, it is. And, unfortunately, you cannot go out and buy charm by the bulk. You slowly develop charm, as you live, day by day. You may have it now right within your grasp and a little concentration will make it serve you.

Gracious at the Kernel
A gracious manner and good taste are perhaps the kernel of this halo which attracts people to you. How you do things every day, how you behave, what you wear and how you wear it, are all a part of good taste. You may have the best intentions in the world of being considerate of others but if you do not extend the personal effort and BE CONSIDERATE you will not have charm. You may have the prettiest little face in town but if you do not take care of your skin, or if you wear an overdose of makeup you detract from your beauty. You may KNOW how to act nicely privately and publicly but if you fail to do so, you are not charming. You are just being ordinary. No ordinary person radiates charm, it takes the exceptional girl (who is a hard task master for herself) to acquire that something which allures and makes her life pretty happy.

Keep Mentally Enthusiased
A dull mind, or a sordid mind is never a welcomed companion. People want enthusiasm from you. They want your fresh, lively ideas. Your happy outlook on life. They want modesty of thought too. The girl who thinks she is being the life of the party by making questionable "wise-cracks," certainly will never be classed as a girl of great magnetism.

Just as your wardrobe needs new clothes, and your skin beauty aids, so does your mind need stimulation. Give your mind food as well as your body. No knowledge acquired is ever acquired in vain. Sometime it will serve you, come to aid you, help you make living more exciting. Keep enthused about people, things, places. Be ever conscious that life at its longest is never long enough for us to do all we wish to do and be all we hope to be! So make every precious hour count!

Create a Pretty Body
As you acquire all these attractive characteristics be ever on the alert to keep your figure as attractive as possible, yourself well groomed and dress as fashionably as you can within your circumstances. For after all YOU house charm, and that house should be just as lovely as you can keep it through exercising, diet and a sensible daily beauty routine. It reads like a hard job but let me assure you that "charm" compensates for all the effort you make to acquire it! And don't let any person side-track you once you decide to turn YOU into a person of compelling radiance!

"Dont's of Good Grooming" will help you to be charming. Enclose a self-addressed envelope, bearing a three-cent stamp if you request it. Write me care of this paper.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin R. Perkins

In herb gardens we find many of the herbaceous sorts in the prime of their midsummer richness and ready for cutting and subsequent drying. Prime condition is noted when the tip buds are on the stems. If cut before the flowers open, all the goodness of the flowers will be retained in the dried herbs. Lavender is especially choice when treated in this manner.

Horseradish, thyme, basil, balm and marjoram, along with lavender, are just about ready for collecting. The treatment needed is simple. Cut the stems of wanted plants of suitable length. Avoid bottom woody growths and stay toward the tops of plants where growths are more succulent. Lay the cut stems on racks in an airy but not too hot room. Keep them out of sunlight. When all the moisture is out of the stems crumble the leaves and shred the stems. Store in airtight tins properly labeled. Parsley and celery require additional treatment. Cut the celery tops and parsley sprigs, dip them into a solution made from one cup of water into which a tablespoonful of salt has been dissolved. Shake off all surplus moisture and lay them out to dry in the same conditions as mentioned for other herbs.

Fennel, dill and caraway are useful for their seeds. Plants of this type should be allowed to bloom and set seeds. These can be collected any time after the seeds are dry. They too should be stored in tins or jars where they can be gotten at to flavor foods during the coming winter.

Sprinkle caraway, poppy or anise seeds over cookie dough to make seed cookies.

Ruff of Club Was Only Way To Beat Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following is the most interesting hand I have ever observed. Usually the kibitzers, after glancing at several hands feel a pitying superiority to the declarer who sees but two hands. This time, however, the kibitzer saw enough to make him gasp in envy.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ K 5	♥ A Q 9	♠ J 10 7 3	♥ 8 6 3 2
♦ J 7 5	♣ Q 10 9 6 5	♦ K Q 9	♣ J 7
WEST		SOUTH
♠ 10 7 4	♥ 10 8 6 4 3 2	♠ A Q 8 4 2	♥ K J 8
♦ A 8 2	♣ A 8 2	♦ A	♣ K 6 4

*The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

"West opened the club ace and continued the suit, declarer winning with the king. A low spade was led to dummy's king and, on the spade return, East split his honors, forcing declarer's queen. When West showed out it was obvious that only a coup could trap East's trump trick. Hence, declarer now laid down the diamond ace, then led a low heart toward dummy. Realizing that three entries would be required in dummy for the plan he had in mind, declarer boldly put in the nine spot and to his satisfaction it held. No declarer had to try a play whose success depended on sheer nerve. Declarer nonchalantly led the club queen from dummy! East went into a huddle and glanced at declarer suspiciously but after much thought decided that declarer was trying to get him to ruff this trick so that he, declarer, could overruff. East felt that he might escape the impending coup if he were to refuse to ruff. He discarded a heart and declarer calmly followed suit with the club six! Now a diamond was ruffed with the four of trumps, then the heart jack was overtaken with the queen, and the last diamond was ruffed with the spade eight. Declarer now was down to the ace-nine of spades and the king of hearts. West's hand did not matter. North still had the heart ace and the two clubs; East, the J-7 of spades and the eight of hearts. Declarer led the heart king to the ace and sent a club through East. Obviously, the J-7 was trapped under the A-9, and declarer's contract was home.

"What we would like to know is: What would an expert in East's position have done on the third club lead?"

C. D., Illinois.

No one can deny that the hand was beautifully played by the declarer, but to answer the specific question, I rush to the defense of experts with the opinion that a real expert in the East position would have defeated the contract by ruffing the third round of clubs.

After South had cashed the ace of diamonds and entered dummy with the nine of hearts (a brilliant play, but one which would have been nullified had West miraculously put up the heart ten). East should have had a clear picture of South's holding. South had already been shown to hold six spades, at least two clubs, and the diamond ace. The fact that the nine of hearts held proved that South's hearts were many, were solid. When the high club was led from dummy, East should have reasoned as follows: If he failed to ruff, and South had no more clubs but did have a losing diamond or a fourth heart he (declarer) also would discard. Next, declarer would ruff a diamond, then enter dummy with a heart, and ruff dummy's last diamond, thereby shortening the South hand to the A-9 of trumps, against East's 9-7. Finally, the heart king would be overtaken with the ace and East would still have to follow suit. Now, with the play in dummy, any card led would have to be ruffed by East, and South would overruff, thereby completing the coup.

Thus, since careful analysis would have proved to East that there was nothing to be gained by refusing to ruff the club queen, pure logic would have dictated the ruff of that card as the only possible chance to defeat the contract.

Grapes, looking good enough to eat, are the only decoration on Anita Louise's evening gown. Around the high neckline, actress grapes mauve bubble balls shaped in clusters of grapes which hang slightly over the left shoulder. The gown, draped gracefully to the figure, is in silk jersey in a pale champagne. Long tight sleeves and a slight train are distinctive features.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

When everyday meals begin to get monotonous, and appetites lag, bring out the ring mold. You have probably used it often for party foods, but every day meals take on new interest—even glamour—with foods baked in a ring mold. For instance there is your old friend canned salmon, a perfect summertime food, a trusty friend ready to go to work as a completely satisfying dish in this form. Serve steamed rice in the center and baked tomatoes and fried egg plant around the outside and you have a simple, yet festive looking main course. A delicious accompaniment is blueberry muffins. No meal is complete without dessert, so here is my recipe for fresh peach upside down cake.

THE MENU
Salmon Ring
Baked Tomatoes
Fried Eggplant
Blueberry Muffins
Fresh Peach Upside Down Cake
Salmon Ring

2 cups salmon (1 lb. oz. can)
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg yolk
1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup chopped white sauce
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 cup blueberries

Dredge blueberries in 1 cup of flour, let stand 1 hour. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, cream together until light. Blend in egg. Sift together baking powder, salt and rest of flour. Add to the creamed mixture alternate-ly with the milk, add flour berries last. Bake in greased muffin pans in a hot oven 400 degrees F. for 25 minutes.

Fresh Peach Upside Down Cake
1 1/2 cups cake flour
1 cup sugar
1 egg well beaten
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
6 peaches, pared and sliced

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Melt butter in 8-inch iron skillet, add brown sugar, and stir until sugar is melted. On this arrange slices of peaches. Pour batter over peaches. Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees F., 50 minutes. Loosen cake from sides and bottom of pan with spatula. Turn out upside down on large plate. Cut in wedges and serve with whipped cream.

My Neighbor Says—

Pansies often fail in mid-Summer but can be kept in a thrifty condition until Autumn if fed with liquid manure after the 1st of July and a part of each plant is cut away to encourage new growth. It is good plan to remove a little leaf growth when gathering the blossoms.

Sliced bananas baked with canned or fresh apricots make a tasty combination. Serve them warm or cold, plain or topped with whipped cream. Add a dash of ice cream.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Every business and professional man should be familiar with the basic principles of child psychology, for children control more buying than most people realize. They even direct the purchase of one type of gasoline in preference to another, depending on the free souvenirs they obtain thereby.

CASE No. 195: Anna J., aged 41, is the wife of a dentist and was present at a state dental convention which I recently addressed.

"We were very much interested in your remarks about practical aspects of child psychology from the dentist's viewpoint," she said.

"Recently Doctor and I decided to buy a parrot. We spent $100 for the bird, but he has well repaid us already."

"Doctor specializes in child cases, so we taught the parrot to say 'What's the matter?'"

"He really speaks so plainly that every youngster immediately understands what he says. And the months, simply because you didn't consciously pay heed to it.

Whenever we consciously attend to any ache or pain, it looms much larger than before. People who are chronically worried about their health are called hypochondriacs.

They have pains in the abdomen but the physician may not find anything organically wrong. They have educated themselves to notice minor sensations from the heart, pelvis or bowels which normally we ignore. They may actually be hypersensitive.

Pain Is Mental
Under an anesthetic, a patient does not feel pain, for we have blocked the nerve currents. Even in hypnosis we can also eliminate pain by psychological blockage.

As long as we distract our attention, as by the parrot in the dental office, we are not so much aware of the dentist's drill. A busy executive will not notice the severity of his headache as much while on duty as when he gets home, and has less to distract his attention.

We can then magnify the headache by thinking about it, or by also employing it as a means for eliciting more attention from our wife or sweetheart or friends or children.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent, enclosing a "test" stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover printing and typing costs. Letters and readers' names are never published.

SEATING GUESTS AT WEDDING
Dear Mrs. Post: Where are the clergyman and his wife seated at the wedding reception? There is a downward table for the wedding party, but the other guests will be served buffet style.

Answer: The clergyman and his wife are seated only if the parents have a table. If there is to be only one sit-down table for the bridal party, then the clergyman and his wife as well as the parents are served with the other guests. One point I should like to make is that for hostesses who provides a place for herself at a sit-down-and-buffet comfortably-served table, while her guests are obliged to forage for themselves and eat as best they can, standing, is every bit as bad mannered as one who has herself served first at her own table.

Advice to Magazine Subscriber
Dear Mrs. Post: On my birthday I received a card from a relative who lives far away, informing me that she was sending me a twelve-month subscription to a leading periodical. Enclosed with her card was a card from the store in her town stating that the subscription had been entered that day. After receiving this magazine for several months, no more copies came. I wrote the store several times and my letters were not answered. My question is, would it be bad manners for me to write direct to the relative and tell her the story? I don't want to cause her to have to

Early Impressions Affect Child's Growth, Behavior

BY ANGELO PATRI

For the first three years, roughly measuring, mothers have little trouble with their children beyond what the daily routine imposes. The child eats and sleeps and plays as his mother decrees and there is no question about obedience. The child stays for the most part where he is put. Because he does not resist or show much positive evidence of his having a will of his own mothers take for granted that all is well with the child. Sometimes it is, sometimes it is far from that.

Every experience with his mother, or the other people about him, is registered on the child's mind and has its effect in the sun of his thinking, and the kind of his growth. He catches the varied feelings and attitudes of those who touch him. The touch of a hand carries a true message from the mind and heart behind it to the child. If that hand is sure and gentle and charged with loving kindness, that is the message it takes to the child's mind. Those are the forces that affect the attitudes and the health of his mind, and they will be good. If the words he hears are good words, strong in good cheer, encouragement, loving guidance, he learns hard on them and they nourish his mind and soul.

During the first years of his helpless infancy he lies in his crib, plays about on the floor, soaking in these experiences and building his ideals and ideas in the silence of his being. Growth goes on there daily. Attitudes and habits are set that remain for a lifetime. Powers are stimulated into action which will determine the child's future to a large extent. All the time his mother and relatives are looking upon him as a baby to be fed and cared for but not much of a person in his own right, not one to be regarded with courtesy, consideration and reverence, he is busily engaged in learning from them, and of them. They have no spiritual secrets from the wise-eyed infant who so quietly regards them. He has taken note of them all and added to his personality all that they can give.

Changes take place daily in the mind and body of this infant and he is transformed before the unseeing eyes of his family. One day he astonishes one of them by showing a character they had not counted on at all. He has a will, and a way with him, and force to back it up. Now all the experiences that went into the making of his character return in his behavior. Whatever went in is bound to come out.

This process of hidden growth is underneath the behavior of the child who, one astounding day, defies his mother calls her names.

Mistake Soon Realized When Wife Is Forsaken for Another

BY DOROTHY DIX

A prominent public utility executive is suing his second wife for a divorce because he claims that she deceived him away from his first wife by practicing her feminine wiles and charms upon him. He asserts that with Wife No. 1 he had spent twenty-six years of happily married life, but no sooner had he married Wife No. 2 than he ascertained that she had no affection for him and had married him for his pocket-book, not his heart. Not only that, in the home close-up she lost her allure, for he charges she wore her hair in nets, used metal curlers, cellophane mittens and cosmetics and wasn't even as good looking as his clean, old soap-and-water wife.

The account of his divorce case will be greeted by loud and ribald laughter. The general public has scant sympathy with the aging man who lets a hard-boiled, little, gold-digging flapper take him away from the faithful wife who has loved him and saved for him and helped him build his fortune. And so when they see him writhing at his misery with contemptuous mirth rather than with pity.

bottom of the pit which his folly has dug for him they look upon his misery with contemptuous mirth rather than with pity.

Yet if you have tears to shed, you might well weep them out on the shoulder of the middle-aged man who swaps off his old wife for a new one young enough to be his daughter. For he is of all men the most unhappy. It does not take him long to discover that he has been played upon by a mere girl baby who landed him, and who has no interest in him except in what he can give her, and that his belief that he was still just a boy was an illusion with which he befooled himself.

A man who divorced his middle-aged wife to marry his pretty young secretary writes me: "Whenever I see a middle-aged husband and wife going about in happy comradeship or sitting by their own firesides talking about their children and what a fine record and pretty and popular Mary is, or just sitting in a silence that needs no speech to make them feel how close and dear they are to each other, I am so filled with chagrin at the folly I am committed and so envious of their happiness that I turn my face away in agony.

"For it might have been mine if I had not thrown it away. I was married to as fine a wife as any man ever had. She loved me. She worked and scrimped and saved to help me get a start. She made me a comfortable home. She gave me fine children. We were a devoted and loving couple until, like so many other men in their forties, I went haywire.

"Domesticity had become sort of flat. I began to realize that I was getting old. And then I happened on the Eve who is always around to lead any man into temptation who is worth the price. Mine stuck to me for a wedding ring and so I divorced my wife, separated myself from my children and married her. We hadn't been married a week before I woke up from my trance and found out that the woman I loved was my wife, and that what I wanted was my home and children.

"The new wife and I had not one thing in common, not even affection."

Answer: Usually every magazine sent to a subscriber is stamped with the subscriber's name, address and the date. "June 39" would mean your subscription ended with June number. But if the date is "Jan '40", then they are being misent. If you have lost the wrapper or have given away the magazines, the best thing to do, I think, is to write to the circulation manager of the magazine. Enclose a self-addressed envelope and ask if your subscription has lapsed because you have not received the magazine since such a number. I suggest writing to the magazine because usually the store is merely an agent who, after having turned in a subscription, has no further record of it.

Divorcee Uses Maiden Name
Dear Mrs. Post: If the Court grants a divorcee the use of her maiden name, does she write it as Miss Anne Jones or Mrs. Anne Jones?

Answer: Neither. She takes her mother's name and prefixes it to her own maiden name. If her mother was a Miss Brown then she calls herself Mrs. Brown Jones. Properly she can call herself "Miss" only if the marriage had been annulled, and if she is furthermore indifferent to the comments which annulment is likely to provoke. If she is a professional person she may of course call herself Miss Anne Jones in the theatre, or the office. But in social life Mrs. Brown Jones is the conventional and therefore least conspicuous name to choose.

Paradise of the Penny
Diffenderfer's Penny Arcade offers its patrons a wide variety of amusements at, as the name implies, small cost. Wherefore Mr. William Steele, jostling his way through the crowded lobby, found himself mingling freely with the lot polio. But he pushed on doggedly and entered the tawdry tobacco-reeking establishment.

It is supposed that, had William been appraised earlier of the sartorial influences prevailing in this paradise of the penny, he would have accomplished its invasion in more suitable habiliments. As it was, he was attired in a perfectly cut linen suit, brown the cool with white polka dots and a Panama hat with a raddy-colored band. To say that he was distinctive here would be to undersell grossly. He was, as the poem has it, last, long, loveliest, exquisite, apart, And being such, he excited comment much of it unfavorable.

But though there was a suspicion of veiled animosity in the air, no one seemed to care to manifest his disapproval of William in a businesslike way. In the days of his collegiate magnificence Mr. Steele had been the mainstay of the Stanford eleven's attack. Upon one occasion, after a particularly neat bit of attacking, he had been alluded to by a phrase-slinging newspaper scribe as the "Torrid Terror of the Rose Bowl." Now, despite his life of ease and luxury he still sported shoulders as befit a Torrid Terror of the Rose Bowl. And though egg of the first part respects such shoulders in tough egg of the second part, even though tough egg of the second part be camouflaged by a white linen suit.

tion, and so she goes her way and I go mine. She is satisfied when she has plenty of money to spend, but I have nothing to satisfy my soul, and there is no more miserable man on earth than I am."

That is the end of many another story of the man who swaps off his old wife for a pretty new one, as you can see for yourself when you observe a tired and sleepy husband sitting alone at a table at a night club, good for nothing but to pay the bills, while his young wife dances with some boy of her own age.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am two or three inches taller than my fiancé and this is a little embarrassing sometimes, as we are both shy. Do you think we could be happy if we married? Or do you think that I will be always wishing that I had waited for some one taller or he would be wishing he had picked out a smaller girl than I? R. M.

Answer: The desirability of a husband or wife is not measured in inches, and so your respective heights will have nothing to do with your marriage. Some of the biggest men in the world in mind and heart have had small bodies, and vice versa. Don't worry about being taller than your husband. Nobody whose opinion is worth a rap cares about that.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

HOPI IDOLS

In the year 1888 several Navaho Indians were passing near an old Hopi pueblo. The pueblo as they knew it, had been deserted for more than a century. Suddenly they found a small cave and entered it. Inside they discovered several little statues which had been used as Hopi idols.

Indian before Blue Flute altar in the Middle Mesa

The Navahos knew that white traders paid money for such things so they took them to the home of Thomas Keam, eight miles away. Keam bought them, and no doubt felt he had obtained treasures of some importance.

News of the event traveled to a nearby Hopi village, and before long a band of Hopis came trooping to Keam's home. They were angry. The idols had been near a deserted Pueblo, but these Indians had been in the custom of going to the cave to pray!

Being a man both kind and wise, Keam gave the images to them. He knew they would mean a great deal to the tribe.

We are told the Hopis treated the idols with honor as they carried them away. All along the route back to the cave, they made a pathway by dropping sacred meal.

The Hopi Indians used to have idols in every home, but this is true no longer. Most of the household images, have been sold to tourists and traders, or have been hidden away.

Certain very holy images are kept in secret places such as caves. Some of these are of stone, and are believed to date back hundreds of years.

There is, for example, the shrine of "Talatumsi," which means the Elder Sister of the Dawn, in other words the planet Venus. This shrine is an opening which was cut in rock. When not in use, the doorway is covered by a flat stone slab, and is sealed with clay.

Once in four years, the Hopi people open the shrine. They do so on a November day, and the image of the Elder Sister of the Dawn is carried to the highest point in the region. It is made of wood, and when it is carried out it is wrapped in a white blanket. The people make offerings to the idol, and then it is taken back to the shrine.

The Hopis have altars on which they place images. One of these is known as the Blue Flute altar. It is loaded with many objects, including prayer sticks, corn husks, a gourd and ears of corn.

The far-famed snake dance of the Hopi tribe plays a part in their religion. In this dance, men carry snakes in their hands. Since some of the snakes are rattlers, people wonder how the dancers can escape without being killed. A few years ago a Hopi who had turned Christian told what he claimed was the secret. He said the rattlers were made to keep biting such objects as animal hides. This was done, he said, in a secret place and caused the snakes to lose their supply of poison before the dancing started.

Methyl Bromide May be Used to Control Insects

Chemical Fire Extinguisher Effective in Killing Bugs, Experiments Show

Methyl bromide, sometimes used as a fire extinguisher, is proving even more useful as an insect "extinguisher" or fumigant, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent. The chemical will in many cases kill insects without injuring plants upon which the insects are feeding.

Entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture are working with this fumigant to determine the time and temperature most effective for treatment to kill insects without injury to plants.

Methyl bromide is used in control of the Japanese beetle—in the fumigation of fruits and vegetables from within quarantined areas. It also has been found particularly useful for treating potted plants and nursery stock which may be infested with the larvae of this insect. After treatment the plants can be shipped outside the quarantined area without danger of spreading the pest. A few species of plants are injured by this treatment; others may be stimulated to more rapid growth.

Methyl bromide is useful and economical in sterilizing soil, as 2½ ounces of the gas costing about a dime will kill all the larvae of certain species of insects in a cubic yard of soil.

Hear Project Reports At 4-H Club Meeting

Reinert 4-H club held a meeting Monday night at the home of Miss Fern Werper, Oshkosh, in honor of Miss Helen Briggs, county 4-H club leader, who will be married soon. Audrey Butt, president, presided. The members answered roll call by reporting on their progress on projects.

The program included the 4-H pledge, songs by the group, a vocal solo by Arlene Smith, songs by Beverly Werner. Games were played and prizes awarded to Mrs. A. L. Anderson, Gladys Winkelman, Arlyn Kempf and Orville Sells. Miss Briggs was presented with a gift from the group. Mrs. A. L. Anderson was a guest. Mrs. Henry Langner is the leader.

Camera Records Steps in the Building of a New Plywood 'Package' Home

The steps in the construction of one of the new "package" homes that will be sold and erected in Appleton by a new corporation to be organized soon are shown in the accompanying pictures.

The homes will be manufactured at the American Plywood corporation plant in New London and shipped to wherever they are to be constructed. The use of panels for both interior and exterior walls makes it possible to ship the homes and to erect them in a much shorter time.

These pictures were taken during and after the building of a "sample" home at New London. Only 10 days elapsed from the time work started on the foundation until the home was completely decorated and ready for occupancy.

New Appleton Corporation to Build and Sell 'Package' Homes Produced at New London Plant

Formation within a few days of a new Appleton housing corporation that will build and sell a new type of home manufactured at the American Plywood Corporation plant in New London was announced today.

The announcement was made by B. J. McGarry, New York city, president of Contemporary Homes, the firm that holds patents on the processes used in manufacturing the materials and erecting the dwellings. Contemporary Homes will license the Appleton corporation.

McGarry, an architect by profession, is the inventor of the patents for the "package" home, a dwelling that is made in entirety at the New London plant, simply shipped to its location, and erected by workmen who do not have to be equipped with hammers and saws.

McGarry, whose headquarters at present are at the plant in New London, said yesterday that "this is the first time a well constructed, low cost house has ever been put on the market. The homes are not standardized. We can build anything a person wants in design or size."

The president of Contemporary Homes has devoted considerable time to research and development work in the steel industry and for the last seven years he has devoted his attention exclusively to housing. He has written articles on home building for such magazines as Good Housekeeping, American Home, American Architect and others.

In the homes which the new Appleton corporation will sell, panels form both the finished interior walls and the exterior walls. Siding, shingles, brick or stone can be applied to the exterior. The panels all are of phenol resin plywood which is bonded to the interior studding

Packing Season For Peas at End

Estimate State Will Produce Fourth of Nation's Production

Present estimates show that Wisconsin will produce a fourth of the nation's production of peas for canning although the state's crop this year is expected to be much smaller than the record crop harvested last year, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

The pea canning season in Outagamie county is at an end and the crop was about 40 per cent smaller than last year due to reduced acreage.

Wisconsin continues to be the largest producer of canning peas in the nation. Practically all of the states producing peas report acreages less than a year ago. With the exception of Wisconsin, Michigan, and some northwestern states, prospective yields are below average for all the important canning pea states.

It is estimated that the state's canning pea production this year will be about 48,000 tons compared with more than 99,000 tons harvested last year, and the average production of 72,780 tons for the 10 years, 1928-37. Wisconsin's production this year will be one of the smallest in the past two decades.

The planted acreage of peas for canning is estimated at 68,600 acres, which is somewhat below earlier estimates for Wisconsin. For the United States, the acreage is estimated at 253,720 acres compared with 322,360 acres harvested in 1938. The production for the nation is reported at 187,420 tons compared with the all-time high production of 302,540 tons of peas for canning harvested last year.

Well Insulated
The insulation is enclosed in the wall panels. These panels in various sizes, including door and window openings, form the shell of the residence as well as the interior partitions. The rigidity attained by this method gives the house greater strength, its builders claim. It also enables the house buyer or owner to build with a uniform system of construction, the work done with the utmost precision. The builders believe that this eliminates all piece meal operations and waste of materials.

The home in New London has had a steady stream of visitors since its completion. The living room walls are curly birch veneer, finished in natural wood. The bath room is equipped with modern fixtures, with a built-in tub. The floor is of linoleum, the walls finished in thistle color paint, and the linoleum is royal blue. The trim is modern gray, with white ceiling.

The large bed room is designed for twin beds. Three walls are paneled in soft cocoa shades and the fourth is finished in brown ash veneer, bringing out the color of wood.

The walls of the kitchen are light sand color, the trim in gray, the floors in royal blue linoleum and doors in a modern blue green. The cabinets are of latest design; the refrigerator, stove, and sink all planned to save steps and improve the room's appearance.

The dinette is in the far corner of the kitchen, with an upholstered wall seat, capable of seating four, finished in brilliant green leather, with a chrome and black lacquered table with two matching chairs in green leather.

Modern methods are employed in lighting the kitchen. A recessed light in the beam over the sink eliminates all shadows while working. Outlets are provided over the work space and in the dinette for toasters and other appliances.

Several of the homes will be erected soon in Appleton and vicinity, McGarry said.

GARBLED GROCERIES

Dallas, Wis.—(P)—Clerks in Dallas' largest grocery store were at their wits' end after a flood. Labels were soaked off canned goods stored in the basement so no one could tell which were beans, soup, peas or corn.

FOUR BLIND DATES

By Edwin Rutt

As a consequence, the progress of William through Diffenderfer's Penny Arcade was impeded physically by none.

The man in charge of the shooting gallery, however, accosted him hospitably. He was an attractive personality with a nose like a shark hook.

"Try yer luck wid da rifles, bud-dy?" he suggested.

William waved him aside. But the shooting gallery magnate didn't stay aside.

"Aw, come on," he wheedled. "Business is bad."

"Sorry," William said. The shooting gallery man appeared to be a disciple of Joe Penner's.

"Doncha wanna shoot a duck?" he inquired, almost reprovingly. William said that no, he did not want to shoot a duck. He was on the point of plunging deeper into the jungle of Diffenderfer's when it occurred to him that the shooting gallery man might be of service.

He paused, therefore, and drew fifty cents from his pocket.

"Listen," he said, "I don't want to shoot. But here's a half a buck. It's yours if you'll take me to the East Brothers. I'm told they work here."

The shooting gallery man scratched his head, a popular pastime at Diffenderfer's.

"Don't know 'em," he said at last, eyeing the fifty cents wolfishly.

"Hell," Bill said.

"Sure dey work here?" asked the shooting gallery man.

"A fellow said they did," replied Bill. "Horace and Morris East."

The sinister countenance of the shooting gallery man cleared. He reached a grimy paw for the fifty cents.

"Well, now why didn't ya say ya was lookin' fer Horace and Morris in de foist place?" he said aggrievedly. "Sure, I know dem guys. C'mon, I'll take ya."

"Where?" said Bill mystified.

Phantasmagoria
The shooting gallery man pointed to a platform in the rear of Diffenderfer's. William, following his finger, started.

Upon the platform was the odd collection of humanity that he had ever seen. At first glance it seemed a confused phantasmagoria such as might appear to a mind reduced by a couple of dozen champagne cocktails. It finally resolved itself, however, into a lady of Himalayan proportions; another lady whose countenance, hands, arms and shoulders were undeniably lilac-colored, a gentleman who either was, or cleverly contrived to give the impression of being a skeleton sitting on a straight-backed chair, an orang-outang; a lean cadaverous individual with side whiskers who was, conservatively speaking, ten feet tall; a girl of debilitant age wreathed in snakes; what appeared to be a man with two heads and two bodies; and a family of midgits. Gazing upon this likely-looking assemblage William's jaw dropped and he permitted himself the luxury of a gasp.

But had he been accustomed to life backstage at Diffenderfer's, he would have eschewed such rudeness. For then he would have known the facts. The lady who must have required the services of a derrick in order to get out of bed was simply Mrs. Gussie Zilch, alias Madame Abdullah, The Fat-test Woman in The World, weight 660 lbs. The lilac-colored siren would have been to him just Bertie Walsh, known professionally as The Light Lavender Lady From The Limpopo. The ghoulish individual vacationing apparently from the potter's field was none other than Mr. Jepphason, The Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton. The orang-outang was not an orang-outang at all but merely, in private life, a Mr. Moss, the father of five children none of whom exhibited any of the more sinister simian proclivities. Mrs. Moss, during his working hours, was enticingly billed as The Missing Link. Further, William would have known that the side-whiskered individual, besides being The Tallest Man on Earth, was a sufferer from chronic dyspepsia, that the reptile-wrapped debutante answered to the name of Pearl and the wrapping was just her favorite python, Anastasia; that the gentleman with two heads and two bodies was not a gentleman, but two gentlemen, Messrs. Horace and Morris East of Seventh Avenue; that the midgits were gentle, God-fearing people despite a wide experience of circuses, sideshows and vaudeville. But William, a Philistine, knew not these things. He could only gaze at the assortment, convinced, as Hamlet was before him, that something in the nature of decay was going on in Denmark.

The shooting-gallery man had mistaken his gasp of surprise for an expression of apprehension.

"C'mon," said the shooting gallery man, nudging his elbow. "Dey won't bite, ya. Dere nuttin' fer freaks."

"You're telling me?" said William. He suffered himself to be propelled forward.

During his collaboration with the shooting-gallery man a discussion had been in progress on the raised platform. The subject of this discussion was William. At the moment of his entry into Diffenderfer's, he had been spotted by the freaks, as a brilliant butterfly who chooses to cast in his lot with a regiment of black beetles must expect to be spotted by all and sundry. And a curiosity concerning his identity had been established at once.

Freak Conversation
The Light Lavender Lady From the Limpopo voiced the first opinion.

"I believe," she said to the Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton, "that the gentleman who just came in is probably James J. Walker, a former Mayor of New York City. If you read the papers, Mr. Jepphason, you will know that Mr. Walker has returned to America."

"I always read the papers," intoned the Absolutely and Positively Only Living Skeleton, monotonously.

"Well then?" said the Light Lavender Lady From the Limpopo, as if this proved her point.

Mr. Moss, the orang-outang, spoke without being asked to.

"My theory is," said Mr. Moss, "that he's a detective."

"Hee-hee," giggled Pearl, the snake-charmer. She was a light-hearted girl always ready to giggle. She now leaned forward to get a better look at William and this movement brought a section of the python, Anastasia, in close contact with The Tallest Man On Earth.

The Tallest Man On Earth performed a movement much as the Eiffel Tower might perform if someone started it.

"There you go," ejaculated The Tallest Man On Earth. "How many times do I have to tell you never to shove that brute directly in my face?"

"Oh, you make me sick," said Pearl, the snake charmer. "Anastasia wouldn't hurt a fly." She patted the serpent's head lovingly. The reptile leered with pleasure.

"It gets my nerves wrought up," went on The Tallest Man On Earth, as if Pearl had not spoken. "And when my nerves are wrought up I suffer greatly from my dyspepsia. I know I'm going to have a nervous breakdown if it goes on much longer. I mean, this having to practically live with a snake thirty feet long."

"Thirty-two," corrected Pearl. The Light Lavender Lady From the Limpopo waved her hand as at a matter of no importance.

"Before we were so rudely interrupted," she said, looking reprovingly at The Tallest Man On Earth. "Mr. Jepphason, Mr. Moss and myself were discussing the identity of that gentleman there in the white linen suit. Mr. Moss has just given as his opinion that he's a detective."

One of the heads of the East Brothers, the one belonging to Morris, answered: "Of course not. Detectives don't dress that way."

"Be quiet, Morris," said the head belonging to Horace. "See that?" said Morris East to the open Forum. "Every time I open my mouth he tells me to be quiet. Why can't I speak? I've got a right to speak, haven't I?"

"I said be quiet, Morris," said Horace, sternly.

At this point William and the shooting-gallery tycoon pushed their way through a little knot of curious customers who were staring at the freaks and gained the edge of the platform. The shooting-gallery tycoon beckoned with imperious finger.

"Hey, you, Horace an' Morris," he ordered loudly, "cummere a minnit. Dey's a guy here astin' fer ya."

Ensiling Method Being Tried at University

A method for ensiling such crops as alfalfa, clover and the grasses is being tested at the state university.

Under the method phosphoric acid is used instead of molasses, or a mixture of hydrochloric and sulphuric acids. While the process still is in the experimental state, the investigators believe that it holds promise of important developments.

Phosphoric acid has previously been tried for silage making but little is known about the quality of silage made with its use. Recent developments in the manufacture of phosphoric acid made it appear that an acid pure enough to be used for silage making can be made cheaply enough to permit its use in comparison with the molasses or the mixture of hydrochloric and sulphuric acids.
